Enthusiastic Meeting in the Thirteenth Assembly District—Addresses by Hon. Isaac Dayton and Senator Cragin.

The Republicans of the Thirteenth Assembly District assembled last evening, in company with their friends from other districts, and raised a magnificent banner opposite their club-rooms, at the corner of Eighteenth-street and Eighth-avenue. Long before 8 o'clock the avenue and adjacent streets were crowded, while the tops of the houses were one living mass of human beings. Banners and flags hung from every available object, interspersed with cartoons, on which was inscribed "Union Forever." Fire-works were let off, and the scene was most brilliant and enthusiastic. At 8 o'clock Hon. Isaac Dayton was escorted to the stand, the band playing "Hail Columbia," amid almost unparalled excitement. He read a series of resolutions indorsing the Philadelphia nominees, which were unanimously adopted, amid cheers. As soon as quiet had been restored, Mr. Dayton said: We are met here this evening to endorse the candidates of the Republican Party. A party that has been and ever will be, a successful one. A party that has safely guided this nation through financial, commercial and civil troubles. We intend to reinstate Gen. Grant. The Liberal Republicans have adopted several strange things in their platform, one of which is the so-called one-term principle. That principle was put in for the purpose of ensnaring the people by that decrepid party which brought the country to ruin before.

Mr. Dayton concluded an eloquent address, after which Senator Cragin, of New-Hampshire, was introduced. He said: Fellow Republicans—I am happy to be here with you, this evening, to assist in inaugurating this campaign. I appeal to you as Republicans to stand by the party which ought to attract every American citizen, and whose record should insure it the spontaneous respect of all. This great party is composed of those who left their wives and homes, their sisters and little ones, to fight for their country and their principles. The Administration of Gen. Grant has reduced the national debt, and yet he is charged with fraud. When fraud was discovered in your City and County affairs, it was found that your debt increased; but in the Republican administration of the affairs of the country the result has been to the contrary. They who abuse him who saved this Republic, who defeated the plans of Jeff. Davis and Lee and planted the Stars and Stripes on their Capitol, not only insult him but also this Republic, and do not deserve to be participants of the benefits they have received. I believe right will conquer and that the people of America cannot be humbugged by the lies of the Liberals and Democrats. [Loud cheers.]

Mr. Crow and others afterward addressed the meeting, after which the assemblage dispersed.

The Sorehends at Loggerheads—Democrats and Greeley Republicans Squabbling for Office.

The Democrats and Soreheads of the Sixteenth Assembly District assembled last evening at Demilt Hall to form a Greeley and Brown Campaign Club. There were about one hundred present, and a harder-looking crowd it would be difficult to select from any Ward in the City. Wm. Atkinson was chosen Chairman, and he made a speech, in which he observed that there were about five Democrats to one Republican present, and he thought something ought to be done to win over the latter. He was of the opinion that the offices of the Association should be equally distributed among the Sorebeads and Copperheads, so that there would be no wrangling. He finished his remarks to find a score of speakers on the floor clamoring to be recognized. The Democrats were unwilling to give the Republicans the offices, and the Republicans thought the Democrats ought to play second fiddle. A scene of the greatest confusion ensued and remarks of the bitterest character were flung at each other. It was only by great determination on the part of the Chair that the meeting was brought to order so as to vote for the Vice-Presidents. It was plainly evident that, although the resolutions were in favor of Greeley and Brown, that there is the liveliest antagonism between the Democrats and the so-called Liberal Republicans.

Grata Brown.

We receive many letters, from correspondents who seem worthy of trust, reflecting on some peculiarities in the personal habits of B. Grata Brown, the candidate for Vice-President. We have thus far suppressed these letters, but if the facts which they disclose are true, these facts ought to be brought before the public. The nation does not want to see a man habitually intemperate in the Vice-President's chair. His recent illness is ascribed to his own imprudence, and it is said that the complaint known as "Grata Brown's Gripes" is well known in the bar-rooms of the City. At Cincinnati he was said to be often seen in a condition not very becoming to a candidate for high office. Perhaps, Horace Greeley had better take him in hand, and get him to confine himself for a few weeks to the use of Chappaqua water.

The Pennsylvania Canvass.

The Pittsburg Commercial, a careful observer, and cautious in its statements, adds its testimony to the cheering accounts of Republican prospects in Pennsylvania. It says that the substance of the evidence given by capable and credible persons, who have just completed trips through the State, is that, while hardly a corporal's squad of Republicans can be found who will vote the Baltimore ticket, there are many Democrats who declare their purpose of voting for President Grant in preference to Greeley. The business interests in both parties are also substantially united against the Democratic candidate. With regard to the State canvass, it adds that the opposition to Gen. Hartranft in Republican quarters is rapidly dying out, and a reaction—based on the overwhelming proofs which have been adduced of his integrity, and the exposure of the slanders to which he has been subjected—has set in in his favor, which augurs the happiest results. The situation, it says, is every way encouraging.

How Greeley "Enthusiasm" is Manufactured.

Some of the most open tactics of the Greeley wire-pullers are exposed by the Binghamton Republican in this little account of their recent doings: "A friend just returned from an Eastern trip says that while on the Albany road he gathered from several entire strangers the astounding information that Broome County was a unit for Greeley, that scores of our prominent Republicans were going over to him with a rush and that the Grant men of Broome were sunk in the lowest depths of despair. The stranger mentioned the names of several prominent Grant men of Binghamton who were enlisted heart and soul under the banner of Horace. When corrected on several points, with which our informant was acquainted, the drummer gave the rather vague excuse that he 'had heard it.' At Whitney Point these worthies have tarried on several occasions. They generally come one after another, the second man backing up the first's assertions, and adding a variety of startling information, which he represents as 'the very latest.' These fellows can always be detected by shrewd observers, as when questioned by any one acquainted with the localities represented as solid for Greeley they invariably 'wilt.' They are probably paid with the money of the New-York Ring, who are known to be enthusiastic for Greeley, and who are leaving no stone unturned to secure his election."

The Admission of a Friend.

With more honesty and frankness than has usually been characteristic of it of late, the Springfield (Mass.,) Republican says: "We read among the names of gentlemen who figured at one of the Greeley demonstrations in New-York, last week, that of Mr. George A. Shaw, of Boston, late State Director in the Western Railroad, and State-house lobbyist generally. Well, the Reform movement does pick up a great deal of floodwood, that's a fact."

Hon. John Davidson.

In a brief letter to the Secretary of a Republican club at Elizabeth, N. J., Hon. John Davidson says: "I believe the best, highest and purest interests of our country demand the election of Grant and Wilson. I take a brief rest, and will, on my return, enter into the canvass with all my heart and soul, and do the full measure of a man for the great principles of the Republican Party and their honored standard-bearers, the illustrious General and Senator. Urge all you can to stand firm and fast, and if we all do our duty the victory will be ours in November."

A Disgusted Greeley Meeting.

They had what they called a Greeley meeting in Rutland, Vt., last week, and speakers disposed to advocate his election not being numerous, frequent calls were made for a gentleman from New-York, who chanced to be present as a spectator, to address the meeting. The Rutland Herald tells the result: "Their calls were long continued, each time louder and more persistent. Human nature could stand it no longer, and he responded to the call. His speech was brief and to the point. He said: 'The speech he should make would not probably suit them. I am for Gen. Grant.'"

The Boot on the Other Leg.

The New-York Commercial Advertiser says "The Tribune raves like a madman because Mr. Boutwell is going to North Carolina to expose the malice and ignorance, the perversions and falsehoods of Sumner, Schurz & Co. It is also aggrieved because the President seeks recreation at Long Branch. But we have looked in vain for any criticism upon the retreat of Gov. Hoffman to Newport, or to the fact that the Governor, the Lieutenant-Governor, Private Secretary Van Buren and Inspector-General McQuade, went to Baltimore to work and shout for Greeley.

Views of a Veteran Politician—No Real Enthusiasm for Greeley—The Loaves and Fishes—Grant's Election Sure.

There is a cozy little place up-town where a few choice spirits frequently assemble to have a quiet chat. Though at present inactive in the political field, they have all been prominent in the politics of the State and nation. They are, indeed, veteran political observers, and their opinions are entitled to much weight. One of these gentlemen was discussing the "situation" the other evening. There is, said he, a great deal of talk about Greeley at present. This is on account of the recent Democratic Convention, with the proceedings of which the newspapers of the country have been flooded. Men nowadays take their conversational cues from the newspapers. Reading so much about Greeley, and so little comparatively about Grant, except the abuse in the opposition organs, they are apt to error that Greeley is growing in popularity. I tell you, said the veteran politician, that there is less real enthusiasm for Greeley today than before the Cincinnati Convention, and immediately after his nomination. His popularity is now on the decline, and will decrease until his defeat in November. It has been seldom, said he, in my experience that any good has come out of fusions with the Democracy by discontented factions of an opposing party. Already I have noticed a growing dissatisfaction among the Liberal Republicans with their Democratic allies. The "Liberals" are ignored by the Democrats. Their influence is underestimated, the "Liberals" believe. The Democracy are not willing to simply join hands with them. They want to appropriate the candidates to themselves and place the Liberals in the rear instead of the van, the place where the "Liberals" think they ought to be. This contempt for the latter was notably displayed in Baltimore. Instead of indorsing the nominees of the Cincinnati Convention, which would have shown an appreciation of the strength of the party which nominated them, and also a spirit of courtesy, the Democratic Convention nominated Greeley and Brown as the candidates of the Convention. Truly can the Times call the nominees the choice of Tammany Hall, and the Liberal Republicans feel that they have been slighted.

The sentiments growing out of this contemptuous feeling of the Democracy for their fusionists will be productive of discord, as the campaign progresses. Fears will be entertained by both sides that each will demand too many of the loaves and fishes in the event of Greeley's election.

Hungry politicians from North, South, East and West being deprived of office, would rush like a pack of wolves to the White House. If the venerable Horace withstood their attack, he would demonstrate the possession of a stronger constitution than the lamented Harrison, who survived the ordeal but a few weeks. Horace will, however, be spared such danger. Grant's election, in my opinion, is as sure now as when he first ran for President.

Another great obstacle in the way of the success of the Greeleyites is a deplorable lack of money necessary for the legitimate objects of a campaign. Capitalists are sensitive to change, and they are satisfied with the financial policy of the present Administration. Many men in this contest are swayed by personal motives. They are insensible to the principles underlying it. The prospects of office depend upon a doubtful success, and an empty treasury offers no immediate pecuniary reward. Men boast of a willingness to bet that Greeley will be elected, but I have been able to find but few men who have staked money, and these have been Democrats, and not Liberal Republicans, which fact I regard as significant of a doubt in the minds of the latter. The bets I have heard of are small. I have myself bet a few thousands on the election of Grant.

The Political Traders.

The character of the men who are seeking to compass the election of Greeley is well revealed in this paragraph from the Newark (N. J.) Advertiser: "In the Republican Party there can scarcely be found a disappointed, incompetent trimmer—to use the mildest possible terms—who is not enthusiastic for 'Liberalism.' In the Democratic Party, the men who engineered Baltimore are of that class ever ready to secure a bargain. We showed recently that Mr. Greeley's nomination at Cincinnati was the result of a bargain with Democrats before that Convention met, and if any additional proof is needed of the base insincerity and hollowness of this coalition, it is to be found in the political characters of those who have created it. We wish to direct especial attention to this important fact, and ask no man to accept our statement if he is disposed to think it unfair or incorrect. Let him convince himself. Wherever he may reside, let him quietly survey the field, let him carefully ascertain who and what are the men who have banded together in the sacred name of reform to carry out the most dangerous movement ever inaugurated by disappointed, designing and incompetent men. It was conceived in sin, begotten of treachery, and is the greatest political swindle of the age."

The Prospect in Schuyler County.

Ex-Senator Theodore L. Minier has written a brief but satisfactory letter from Schuyler County to the Albany Evening Journal. He says: "Now that Greeley is nominated, it is claimed by some of his enthusiastic friends here that he will carry this (Schuyler) county by a majority of not less than 500. My opinion is it will go for Grant by at least 300 majority."

Grant Ratification in Virginia.

The Virginia Republican Committee is making arrangements for a grand Grant and Wilson ratification meeting, to be held in Richmond on Wednesday 24th inst., to which are invited men of all colors and shades of opinion. Among those who have promised to be present and to address the meeting are Hon. Henry Wilson, Secretary Boutwell and Frederick Douglass.

Ex-Gov. Myron H. Clark.

The story widely published by the Greeley organs that Ex-Gov. Myron H. Clark, who has signed a call for a Greeley meeting, elicits comments as follows from the Albany Morning Express: "Ex-Gov. Clark was not elected as a Republican, and never has been a prominent Republican. Chosen over Horatio Seymour in 1854, by a coalition of all opposing parties, he has, ever since that time valiantly endeavored to secure recognition from the Republican Party. His weakness as an executive officer disgusted even the strongest of his friends, and since the expiration of his term he has lived in forced retirement. His ill-success in securing recognition at the hands of the Republican Party embittered him against that political organization, and two years ago he took a nomination for Governor upon the so-called 'Anti-Dram Shop' ticket, for the express purpose of injuring the Republican Party. He received 1,489 votes, out of a total poll of 769,354! We congratulate the Democracy upon this 'accession' to their ranks!"

The Obscene Publisher Wronged.

A correspondent says: "I personally saw Brown last week, before he went to New-Haven, standing for fifteen minutes in the reading-room of the Fifth-avenue Hotel, attentively reading the last number of Day's Doings all the time, though he 'spouged' the reading, and did not encourage his supporter, Frank Leslie, by buying a copy."

Hon. Hamilton Ward.

Greeley organs have eagerly claimed Hon. Hamilton Ward of Allegheny County as a convert to the Tammany-Greeley faction. This false claim is effectually disposed of by the Belmont Reporter, published at Mr. Ward's home, which says: "This is like a thousand others paraded through the columns of the local Democratic Press, and copied with supreme satisfaction into the Tribune as evidence of the astounding popularity of the Tammany candidate. The claim is wholly and utterly unfounded. Mr. Ward is a Republican and supports Gen. Grant."

Greeley's First Lessons in Pipe-Laying.

On the authority of a resident of Hartford, the Courant tells the following story, as incorporated in a lecture to the students at Union College by Prof. Gillespie some years ago: "Mr. Greeley at one time invited the professor to visit his farm at Chappaqua, and told him he was about to build a fountain in front of his house, the water for which was to be supplied from a spring upon a hill opposite. Mr. Greeley said his plan was to build an aqueduct across the intervening valley, after the manner of the ancient Romans. He could see no other way to conduct the water to the fountain. The professor told him such an aqueduct would cost $200,000 or $300,000, (about twenty times the cost of the whole farm,) but a lead pipe could be laid under ground, which would answer every purpose, and cost $200 or $300. He then explained the principle of the syphon, which is familiar to every school-boy, which so delighted him that he acted like a child who had just received a new toy, and with a profusion of thanks to the professor, gave directions to lay the pipe."

The Liberal Republican Executive Committee.

The Worcester (Mass.) Spy mentions that only three of the persons constituting the Liberal Republican Executive Committee have any national prominence, and it adds that those persons would be much better without such notoriety as they have. These three are Warmoth, Burbridge and Scovel, and of them the Spy says: "The party which has three such men and is not ashamed to give them places of honor, must be as strong as it expects or hopes to be. Whether these men are selected because they are the best men the party affords, or because more respectable men could not be trusted to do the work which is expected of them, is a matter of indifference. An alliance with the Democracy can have no terrors for people who are satisfied to be represented by this Committee. A man who can be content to train in a company of which Warmoth, Burbridge and Scovel are officers, will have no scruples about accepting Tweed's friendship."

Scarcity of Greeley Followers in Ohio.

The Cincinnati Commercial is a Greeley paper and publishes all the political news favorable to Greeley that it can scrape together. The total amount is not much. One of its correspondents adds his portion in the following telegram from Auglaize County, Ohio: "The Baltimore nominations elicited no enthusiasm here. They are received by the Democrats with sullen silence. A prominent Democrat and ex-official says that 500 Democrats in one section of this county will remain at home on the 4th of November next. We have found two Greeley Republicans in the county, one of whom is very doubtful."

Hon. Ebenezer Knowlton, of Maine.

Hon. Ebenezer Knowlton, who was Mr. Hale's chief competitor for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Fifth District of Maine, has written a letter to the Chairman of the District Committee, in which he says: "I have learned that the late Convention at Ellsworth nominated me as a candidate for Presidential elector. Now I shall most cordially support Gen. Grant, and so will every delegate from Waldo who preferred me to Mr. Hale as a candidate for Congress. I shall also support Mr. Hale as the regular nominee of that Convention, according to all honorable usage between opposing candidates in such cases, and as the only practical way to prevent the election of a Democrat or a Greeleyite. But as the office of Presidential elector is regarded as merely complimentary, and as that honor was given me four years ago—and no man has held that office twice since the foundation of the Republican Party—and as I could not accept this extra compliment at this time, without causing unusual thoughts to arise, I respectfully decline the nomination."

Why the Brag is So Loud.

The unusual amount of boasting in which the adherents of Greeley are indulging at the present time, and the enormous demands they are making upon the credulity of the public, receives an explanation from the Providence Journal. That paper says: "It is not on grounds of principle or of policy that the Greeley movement can be sustained; it is not on such grounds that it makes its appeal. It is led and engineered by men whose opinions agree in nothing but this—that they want office and position, which they cannot get under Grant. They are content with any revenue system, from prohibition to free trade; they care nothing for amnesty, which, indeed, might affect them unfavorably, by admitting a few rival aspirants for one class of voters on which they largely rely. How much they care for reform may be inferred from the men with whom they associate, and on whose assistance they largely, if not mainly, depend. They hope to attract to their support the discontented, the disappointed, those who, like themselves, lack advancement; and the first argument, the only effectual one with these is the promise of success. Hence the immense amount of brag with which they carry on the campaign. It springs not from confidence, but from the desire to inspire confidence in others; it is not the assurance of success, but one of the means by which they hope to accomplish it. It is a sort of Chinese mode of warfare with an immense noise of gongs and tom toms, and show of red lanterns, but with very little powder."

To Such Base Uses.

The Chicago Times is moved by the report of Grata Brown's attack of illness here to inquire what would have been the result had he died, so far as relates to the Democratic Party. It says: "Do Democrats imagine that the Baltimore Convention would have been reconvened to nominate a candidate for the Vice-Presidency? If so, they err vastly. That body voted itself a side-show to the Cincinnati Convention, and would very properly have been taken at its own valuation. The latter body would have reassembled and selected a candidate, after which it would have been competent for the gentlemen who have just departed from Baltimore to come together again, if they saw fit, and ratify the selection. It is to such base uses that the great national Democratic Party has come at last, through the machinations of the men who have sacrificed at once its self-respect and its capacity for usefulness."

Oneida County.

A glimmer of how things are going in Oneida County is revealed in the following, from the Utica Herald: "In one town in this county nine Republicans are reported for Greeley. Twenty-two active and influential Democrats are recorded for Grant. We can stand that kind of exchange for a great while. We do not care to spare any Republicans, while we welcome all Democrats for Grant."

Greeley's Friends.

Honest "Liberal" Republicans will do well to scan carefully the list of Horace Greeley's friends. They are of many stripes. One class includes all the Tammany thieves and scoundrels. Another class includes Wade Hampton, Beauregard, Raphael Semmes, Vance, Beriah Magoffin, Fitz Hugh Lee, Harry Gilmer, Robert Ould and such Southern leaders who supported Seymour and Blair. Of this latter class the Hartford Courant says: "Does anybody suppose that they support him because they are converts to any of his principles? They support Mr. Greeley as the Democratic candidate and for no other reason. They have captured him and the Liberal movement as a means of getting into power. Let no one be deceived about this. The election of the Democratic candidate means the transfer of the power from the Middle, New-England and North-west States to the South, which for thirty years have ruled the Democracy. Until equal justice and civil rights are established this transfer could be nothing but a calamity. In the presence of such a calamity the personality of Mr. Greeley or Gen. Grant amounts to very little."

The Tammany Reformers in Maine Appeal for Funds.

A Boston paper says that the Maine Greeleyites held a secret conclave at a Portland hotel, Friday evening, and decided to ask the Greeley National Executive Committee for $25,000 to pay the opening expenses of the campaign. The Portland Press says that there were about thirty persons present at this meeting, F. A. Pike being the only politician present who has more than a local reputation. The Press continues: "Mr. Pike has not been in accord with the Republican Party for more than two years. In 1870 he was one of the number of gentlemen who, if Gen. Chamberlain would have hastened to them, would have started the Liberal Democratic Party then, and Mr. Pike very nearly put himself in the field against Mr. Hale at that time, only declaring because he feared defeat. Our informant says they propose to make a thorough organization in the State to help Mr. Kimball in September. The leaders in the movement are evidently trying to get up an excitement, but the start is not so formidable as that made in 1866 for Andrew Johnson, and for the most part being organized for the same purpose, will fail to meet with a more hearty response."

What a Democrat Thinks.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Among the guests of the hotel here is Geo. Law, of New-York, who, as you, know, is an out-and-out Democrat, but will not go Greeley. He remarked last week to a friend of mine, "Mr. B., I have about a million and a half in United States bonds, and if Mr. Greeley should be elected I would sell them out immediately." You can use this in the Times as you may see fit without my name.

Yours truly, D. J. R.

Brag and Bluff.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

You will hear in the southern tier of counties, "there is not so much opposition to Grant just about here, but up north the State is all ablaze with excitement for Greeley;" and so when you are at the north "the fire isn't kindled here, but just wait till you get south of Utica, then you will see," &c. Happening, in my travels, to have come from the southern tier of counties to the north, I expected, of course, to find more soreheads than I had yet met with. But here in this quiet village, in the heart of Lewis County, sixty miles north of Utica, I find hardly a Republican but says: "Now the Democrats have nominated Greeley, it is to be the old fight over again, and we will be true to our party rather than become allies to the Democracy." The Democrats blow hard, but it is in vain. On the reception of the news of the Democratic nomination, a feeble salute was fired, and a few boys made a bonfire. Just as the pile of boxes and barrels was prepared for the fire about the only blatant Republican (as I have since been informed) in the village, a keeper of a grocery, was appealed to for six cents worth of kerosene to start the bonfire; but he declined peremptorily, saying it was hard times and he couldn't afford to waste so much. Yet the next day, as I was at the hotel, he was bragging of the numbers that would leave the Republican Party and the power that they would exert in this county. A call is being circulated and is receiving the signatures of the rank and file of the party for a Grant and Wilson meeting next week. Prick the wind-bubble of mock patriotism, assumed for the occasion by the leaders of the Democracy, and their defeat will be final in Lewis County.

The "Reformers."

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

I notice an article in the Tribune of the 5th inst., by "S. H. B."—a Pennsylvania pedagogue—which confirms my convictions, that if a man don't know anything he will tell it the first opportunity he gets. He writes from pure motives to inform the ignorant of the sentiments of this locality. He declares himself the first to taste the "Galvanized Squash," and by Aug. 1, one-half of the Republicans and four-fifths of the Copperheads will join him, and form a Greeley and Brown Club. This distinguished writer retired from the position of Deputy Postmaster quite recently, at the urgent request of his superior, for his treachery, and then he declared with tears in his eyes his desertion from Gen. Grant, and sent a communication to a neighboring journal to that effect, which was probably crowded out. He has made several attempts for various offices, and while all others on his ticket were elected he failed. He should have for such miserable misrepresentation an office from his recently avowed admirer, that will take him from our community. The amalgamation ticket has failed to create any enthusiasm here; those who think otherwise will soon rid themselves of the delusion; those who will vote for Greeley would just as soon vote for his friend Jeff. Davis. It is known here that there is not a corporal's guard of Greeley men in the town, and it is equally well known there are three Democrats that will vote for Grant to one against. The town and county are good for an old-fashioned Republican majority in November.

General Notes.

Grant Clubs have been organized in every ward of Indianapolis.

A Grant and Wilson Club is to be organized at Princeton, N. J., to-night.

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford will speak at the Grant ratification meeting in Elmira to-night.

Charles H. Winfield's friends wish the Democrats to nominate him for Governor of this State.

Two Democratic members of the Kentucky Legislature have declared for Grant as against Greeley.

Seven of the few persons whose names were published as signers to a call for a Greeley meeting in Indianapolis, this week, deny that they signed it or that they support Greeley.

The Keystone Good Templar, the acknowledged organ of the order of Good Templars in Pennsylvania, refuses to recognize the political temperance movement for State or national offices.

Marcellus Emery is rather too much of a Copperhead for the "Liberals" in the Fifth Maine District, and some of the Democrats talk of dropping him as their candidate for Congress, though regularly nominated, and taking up Hon. John H. Rice.

The San Francisco Bulletin and Chronicle urge the Republican State Committee to prevent George C. Gorham, Secretary of the United States Senate, from taking any part in the campaign in California, believing his interference will lose the State to the party in consequence of his general unpopularity, and the suspicion that he is the special friend of the railroad monopolists.

Local Notes.

A number of the Democratic members of the Committee of Seventy favor the re-election of President Grant.

Senator Roscoe Conkling will be invited to address the Grant and Wilson Ratification Meeting, at the Cooper Institute, on the 23d inst.

The Twelfth Assembly District Grant and Wilson Working Man's Campaign Club met last evening, at No. 161 Avenue B, and elected the following officers: John Graham, President; Francis McGuire, First Vice-President; Theodore Tucker, Second Vice-President, and Joseph P. Jones and Wm. Slattery, Secretaries. Resolutions were adopted, pledging the support of the Club toward the election of Grant and Wilson.

A crowded meeting of the Third Assembly District Republican Association was held last evening. Mr. Jeremiah Sullivan presided. Resolutions were adopted indorsing the Philadelphia platform and the nomination of Grant and Wilson. Addresses were made by Col. Charles S. Spencer, Mr. Francis S. Lambert and Mr. Nathan Kingsley. The following gentlemen were elected delegates to the Young Men's Central Committee: George W. Olmstead, Thomas Morgan and Thomas Kartigan.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Republicans Confident of Victory in August.

Marshal Carrow Brands Congressman Beck as a Willful Falsifier—Doolittle and Other Speakers at Raleigh Declare the Issue—Grant or Greeley—Hedging Against Defeat.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 16.—The political campaign in this State has become more intense than any in its history. Both Republicans and Democrats are making extraordinary efforts to carry the State at the election on the 1st of August, but the Republicans appear more confident of the result. They claim the State by from 5,000 to 8,000, while the Democrats among themselves only insist that the thing is extremely close and the result doubtful. Intimidation and corruption are alleged as the foundation of Republican prospects, and of the latter the fund said to have been sent to Marshal Carrow is specially cited in proof.

CONGRESSMAN BECK BRANDED.

This morning a letter is published from Marshal Carrow to Hon. J. B. Beck, which disposes of that falsehood. From this letter it appears Carrow has drawn from the United States Treasury during the last fifteen months $214,371, all of which, except $66,367 was drawn in 1871. In the same fifteen months Carrow has paid on account of the expenses of the Federal Courts in North Carolina $225,819 for Spring Term, Fall and Special Terms 1871 and Spring Term 1872. Every dollar drawn has been certified by Hon. George W. Brooks, United States Judge for North Carolina, whose official conduct has never been questioned. The large expenses of the Court are due to largely increased business, caused by the prosecution of the Kuklux and the perpetrators of frauds upon internal revenue. In these cases, besides prisoners, thousands of witnesses have been transported to the place where the Court was held, and subsisted there by the Government, a large proportion of them being in the interest of prisoners. Carrow says Beck knew of all these facts when he charged that money had been drawn from the United States Treasury to be used here for election purposes. I may add that there is a general complaint here among the Republicans that there is no money for the legitimate expenses connected with election, and if Carrow had drawn any that complaint would not be heard.

A VIGOROUS FIGHT WITHOUT MONEY.

The Republicans are making a very vigorous fight without any money, and the cry of corruption is raised because of their excellent prospects. They feel sure of their State ticket, and are confident of all the members of Congress except in the Seventh and Eighth Districts, and express little doubt of their ability to secure the Legislature. They are now canvassing the State thoroughly. In addition to Judge Settle and other prominent home speakers, Secretary Boutwell and Senator Wilson are now here. The former speaks to-morrow at Greensboro, and the latter at the town of Wilson. The next day Mr. Boutwell speaks at Charlotte, when he returns to Washington; but Mr. Wilson speaks at Wilmington, Goldsboro, and other important points.

THE TRUE ISSUE.

The Democrats are also active, and have imported Mr. Doolittle, Senator Tipton, Gov. Walker, of Virginia; Dr. Miller, of Georgia; Senator Stockton, of New-Jersey, and it is said Senator Schurz is to be here. Today the Democrats had a meeting here, which had been largely advertised, but not more than 1,000 were present. Doolittle was the first speaker, and made a very temperate address of about an hour and a half, devoted chiefly to argument against centralization, which he said was now the tendency of the Republican Party; but in eulogising Mr. Greeley he said nothing of his opinions on this point. Doolittle said it would make no difference in the result, for Greeley was sure to be elected, which way the blacks voted; but he warned them that it would not be wise for them to vote en masse against the whites; for if they divided their vote equally between the parties it would make both interested in maintaining their right to suffrage. This sentiment was applauded by the audience which was almost exclusively white. Greeley's editorial on magnanimity in triumph just after Lee's surrender, and his letter on the threat of the Union League to expel him were quoted from to show the Southern people that he was their friend. Doolittle said, in further demand for Southern support, that Greeley had lost $50,000 by signing the Jeff. Davis bond, as subscribers to his book to that amount had withdrawn in consequence of that act. In the only part of his speech in which he charged Republicans with wrongful conduct in this canvass, Doolittle refused to be responsible for the charge of Carrow's corruption fund. He credited that to Beck, of Kentucky. The charge that promises had been made to quash indictments against Kuklux, if the indicted parties would support Grant, was given as from Gov. Vance, and a Goldsboro paper was quoted from to support the charge that promises had been made to pay claims for losses sustained during the war if the claimants would vote the Republican ticket. Having stated these things in this way, Doolittle drew a very pretty picture of the South in chains in consequence of Republican policy, and having stated that Federal bayonets had gleamed in sight of ballot-boxes in New-York and Philadelphia, he spoke his piece about habeas corpus, and sat down without having awakened much enthusiasm in his audience. He was followed by Dr. Miller, of Georgia, Gov. Walker, of Virginia, and Tipton, of Nebraska. The issue between Greeley and Grant was almost exclusively discussed, notwithstanding that the Greeleyites, in view of the contingency of defeat, are beginning to claim that it is not involved in this campaign. The meeting is not considered a very great success, after the efforts which had been made to secure the attendance of a vast assemblage.

Ex-Senator Abbott's Views on the Canvass.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Senator Abbott, of North Carolina, was in the city today, and left for New-York. He reports the canvass in that State as very spirited and the Republican forces in excellent condition. There will be no abatement of vigor on their part.

Pennsylvania in October.

The editor of the Bucks County (Penn.) Intelligencer, who, in company with the editors of many political newspapers of both parties, has made a recent trip through the northern and western portions of his State, and who is vouched for as a careful observer not apt to be mistaken, either in his facts or his deductions, gives an interesting account of his investigations, and sums them up thus: "On the whole, there is far less political agitation in Pennsylvania than is usual at this stage of a Presidential contest. There is certainly less political and personal asperity. Yet there is earnestness enough to make it quite certain that a heavy vote will be cast, and that on the October election, at least, will be decided according to old party divisions. Republicans and Democrats will meet each other on the old ground and fight the same battle over again. The effect of the Greeley movement, as it now appears, will be much more to the disadvantage of the Democrats than to the Republicans. The latter are practically united. The former are fearfully divided and demoralized. That the Democrats of the State can make an aggressive campaign with broken ranks, and with Presidential candidates who are repulsive to many of them, is very improbable. The Republicans have decidedly the advantages of the situation thus far, and, with fair management and active effort, they can hardly fail to gather the sheaves of victory."

ILLINOIS.

Meeting of the Conglomerate State Committee—Candidate of Attorney-General Nominated—Presidential Electors that will Never Vote.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 16.—The Democrat and Liberal State Central Committee met in this city today to nominate a candidate for Attorney-General on the fusion ticket in place of Hon. Lawrence Weldon, who declined the nomination, and also to place in the field Presidential electors. When the two State Conventions met, on the 26th ult., the uncertainty as to what the action of the Baltimore Convention might be deterred them from naming the electors at that time, and the State Central Committees of the two factions were empowered to perform that office. After having been in session all day and nearly all the evening, they nominated thirteen Liberals and eight Democrats as electors, and John T. Eustace, of Lee County, for Attorney-General. An Executive Committee was appointed, consisting of five Liberals and five Democrats.

STATE OF NEW-YORK.

Immense Republican Mass-Meeting in Rochester—Great Enthusiasm.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 16.—A Republican mass-meeting was held in Corinthian Hall tonight. The audience was an extremely large one, many being compelled to retire for want of room. Judge George W. Rawson presided. The list of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries was composed of many of the most influential citizens and active Republicans of the city. Hon. Stewart L. Woodford made a brilliant speech in vindication of the character of President Grant. Judge Tourgee delivered a stirring speech.

TENNESSEE.

A Convention to Nominate State Officers Called by the Republicans.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 16.—The Republican State Central Committee will publish a call to-morrow for a State Convention to be held on the 4th of September, to nominate candidates for Governor and Congressman for the State at large.

EGYPT.

Consul-General Butler's "Little Difficulty" With Egyptian Chivalry.

ALEXANDRIA, July 16.—A military commission is now sitting to inquire into the affair between Consul-General George H. Butler and the Khedive officers. Gens. Loring and Reynolds and Major Campbell testify to circumstances, which, in their judgment, clearly show that the affray was premeditated by Butler and his friends, and that their purpose was to take the life of Major Campbell. The latter is dangerously wounded. Butler left Alexandria in the mail packet steamer this morning.

Death of a Prominent Pennsylvania Politician.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., July 16.—Hon. Andrew Stewart, the politician and statesman, better known as "Tariff Andy," died at his residence in Uniontown, Fayette County, Penn., this morning at 10 o'clock.

Alleged Defalcation of the Treasurer of a Manufacturing Company—Widows and Orphans Among the Victims.

BOSTON, July 16.—Hiram A. Daniells, late treasurer of the Wilton Manufacturing Company, whose mills at East Wilson, New-Hampshire were recently destroyed by fire, is alleged to be a defaulter to the amount of $40,000. By his defalcation numerous persons who have trusted him with their property, among whom are widows and orphans, are sufferers: to what extent is not publicly known.

The Yacht Rambler Returned from the Azores.

BOSTON, Mass., July 16.—The yacht Rambler, Capt. H. Crocker, which sailed from Boston last Spring for a trip to the Azores, arrived at this port this afternoon, having left Santa Cruz, Tenerife, on the 21st of June. She has as passengers, Mr. J. M. Forbes, owner of the Rambler; his sister, Mrs. Frances Cunningham; Miss Alice H. Forbes, Miss Sarah C. Jones and Miss R. L. Dabney. The trip has been highly enjoyed by all on board.

twenty-nine out of thirty-six months of the first period the tax on distilled spirits was $2 per gallon; and on the finer grades of manufactured tobacco, averaging more than three-fourths of the whole quantity manufactured, 35 and 40 cents per pound. During the remaining seven months of the first period, and the whole of the second, the tax on spirits was reduced to 50 cents per gallon, or, including certain additional taxes imposed by the statute making the reduction, to an equivalent of sixty five cents per gallon, and on the finer grades of manufactured tobacco to thirty-two cents per pound. These changes were against the last-named period—under an equally honest and vigilant enforcement of the laws. But notwithstanding this great change of rates, the increase of the revenue from the sources enumerated was nearly forty-nine per cent. This is a comparison on a thoroughly fair and just basis. Making all due allowance for the natural growth of income, the fact still remains that under a vigilant Administration the revenues from those sources which should yield most freely, and wherein greatest competition had previously prevailed, has been increased well-nigh one-half.

THE EFFECT OF HONEST GOVERNMENT.

But there is another view of this still more conclusive and flattering. Nearly every year since 1866 Congress has passed statutes reducing internal taxation. These several statutes—excluding that of the session just closed—aggregate reductions equal to $228,000,000. Now the highest limit of receipts from internal revenue were for the fiscal year of 1866, when they reached in round numbers, $311,000,000. If the sources now taxable yielded only the same revenue as in 1866, the present receipts would be $83,000,000 per annum. The fact is, however, that the aggregate receipts for the fiscal year just closed reached $131,000,000, thus showing an increase of revenue from all sources still taxable, of forty-eight millions of dollars per annum! A percentage of this is, of course, due to the natural increase of wealth and business, but by far the larger portion of it is due to the more rigorous enforcement of the laws.

DECREASE IN COST OF COLLECTING CUSTOMS.

Closely connected with this branch of the subject is that of the collection of the customs. Were President Grant's Administration the corrupt thing which Greeley traitors paint it, it would be apparent in this branch if anywhere. It did show in 1868, under Andrew Johnson, to the great profit of many of the corrupt crew who are now denouncing Grant and shouting for Greeley, simply because Gen. Grant has cast them out neck and heels, or has turned a deaf ear to their appeals. There is no department of administration where expenditure can increase so rapidly, or where it is so necessary to check it with a firm hand, as in the collection of the customs. In consequence of smuggling alone hundreds of thousands of dollars may illegitimately escape under a lax administration of affairs, and the temptation to smuggling has increased with the increased rates of the tariff since 1860. Yet the cost of collecting the Customs revenue has been reduced more than one-half since that time when compared with the amount collected. I illustrate by taking four periods as sufficient for the purpose:

	Amount collected.	Cost of collection.	Percentage of cost to collections.
1860, fiscal year.	$53,187,511 87	$3,324,430 53	$6 25
1868, fiscal year.	164,464,599 56	7,615,675 45	4 06
1870, fiscal year.	194,538,374 44	6,237,187 25	3 20
1871, fiscal year.	206,270,426 04	6,560,673 61	3 11

Here is a showing of one clear year under Buchanan, one under Johnson and two under Grant. There must be placed to the credit of the year 1871 the fact that by the act of July 14, 1870, the revenue from customs was reduced thirty millions, which took effect in the last six months of that year. The comparison here is for the purpose of showing the cost of collection only. The increase of the tariff rates consequent upon the necessities of the revenue explain the increase in the collections themselves up to 1868, but since that time the increase has been wholly due to the growth of business and to increased vigilance in enforcing the laws.

SOME FACTS COMPARED.

I come now to the question of comparative expenditures. A covert endeavor is made to show that really the Government is increasing its expenditures, instead of diminishing them, by first taking out of the financial account every feature in which economy has been actually achieved, and then comparing the remaining features without a word of explanation. That a few items of expenditure in the civil list have been necessarily increased, no one pretends to deny. But they are such as have been imperatively demanded by the people and by the necessities of the country. How could Congress fail to cost more in 1871, with every member restored, in salaries, mileage, debates, printing, public documents, &c., &c., than in 1866, with one-third of that body denied representation for disloyalty? Take the cost of public buildings, as another illustration. During the war, and for a period after its close, the state of the finances and the temper of the people did not warrant large outlays in this direction. But with the reduction of expenditure in other quarters the demand has come for increased accommodations for the public business in many large cities, and this demand has been well sustained by the people. Hence we have, for 1871, an appropriation of $2,601,987 30 for this purpose, against but $501,092 08 in 1868. Then comes in also the expenses of the ninth census for which were paid in 1871, $1,955,111 13. In addition we have for 1871, $1,085,728 72 paid as extraordinary expenses for the illegal capture of British vessels, on the Hudson's Bay and Puget's Sound Agricultural Company Commission—making in these three items alone five millions of the increase in the civil list, not a dollar of which, nor of any other increased item, for that matter, can be shown to have been improperly expended, or expended in any manner, save upon the material and legal requirements of the country and the laws. If the "Reformers" who got so badly skinned at Cincinnati by the office-seeking politicians desire to be as impartial in their criticisms as they pretend, let them cite instances of the improper expenditure of these appropriations, if they can.

A REVIEW OF THE WHOLE FIELD.

Now, what is the showing of the financial conduct of this Administration as a whole, taking every department into consideration, and judging it by what it has actually achieved in the matter of expenditures? The answer to this question is best shown in another comparison. I begin with 1867, and end with 1872, just closed, three years (since the war) under Johnson, and three under Grant:

	Net Ordinary Expenditures.
1867—Johnson	$357,542,675 16
18 8—Johnson	377,340,284 86
1869—Johnson	322,865,277 60
1870—Grant	309,653,560 75
1871—Grant	292,177,188 25
1872—Grant	*277,000,000 00

* Semi-official. Official statement will be ready by 15th of August, but will not vary half-million from this.

Here we see that under Johnson the expenditures were actually increased twenty millions of dollars in the last year but one of his Administration, and we see that from that point down to the close of the last fiscal year, (June 30, 1873,) the expenditures of the Government have actually been decreased one hundred millions from their highest aggregate, but as the increase in 1868 was owing to changes in the debt, the actual net decrease since 1867 is eighty millions. Of this reduction there was secured under Johnson, auditing him to March 1, 1869, $20,167,000, and under Grant, $50,833,000, with the possibilities of reduction much greater in the former period than in the latter, by reason of the legacy of war expenses then unadjusted and unpaid.

Take another view. On March 1, 1869, the total debt was..... $2,625,463,260 01
July 1, 1872, it was..... 2,191,436,343 62

Net reduction..... $339,976,916 39

In the last year of Johnson's Administration, 1869, interest on the public debt was paid, viz.: $130,694,242 80; in 1871, $128,576,565 99; in 1872, $117,000,000 (semi-official.)

And on the 1st of July the interest charge on the debt was at the rate of $103,988,463 per annum. So that there is an actual reduction of interest on the public debt since the last year of Johnson of $27,000,000. It is such achievements as these which the Greeley organs expect to keep from the people by beclouding the air with false statements and garbled figures.

WHERE THE LIBERAL RECRUITS COME FROM.

There is another important fact which has been developed in the administration of affairs, which deserves brief mention here. The President is subjected to the severest animadversions with reference to his alleged dependency upon office-holders. This has been the staple cry of "Reformers" in Congress and out. According to them, he has no constituency or supporters, save these and their dependents, and to these, we are requested to believe, he devotes the greatest care. He is charged with organizing them as a political body-guard, and with requiring his renomination at their hands. Philadelphia answered that islander, but it requires more than ordinary patience to see it reiterated day after day when one knows the fact to be that this malignant and personal assault upon the Executive is only because he has turned out of office during his term over 5,000 office-holders and failed to appoint to office twice 5,000 more. I have at hand only the official figures for one bureau, with regard to reduction of force, but the others would cause the total to exceed the figure I have named. The following table shows the actual number of officers in the internal revenue service at the dates named:

	March 1, '69.	Dec. 1, '71.
Assessors	240	232
Collectors	240	222
Supervisors	25	25
Detectives	24	22
Assistant Assessors	2,746	1,291
Guagers	742	987
Store-keepers	1,116	781
Surveyors	180	Jan. 1, '72, none.
Tobacco Inspectors	750	134
Total	6,052	3,804

Every body conversant with the management of the machinery of politics knows that there are no more efficient emissaries for such a purpose than these numerous, active and locally influential men in the employ of the Government. Yet here we see a President,—charged, it must be remembered, with a determination to perpetuate himself by means of the office-holders,—deliberately cutting off the heads of 2,248 in one bureau alone. I regret that I have not time to go into the dismissals in other Departments, but I know enough of the figures to warrant the statement that, all told, this insane President has absolutely kicked five thousand of his paid supporters into the street, and, according to his enemies, still expects to be elected by them!

THE TRUTH VS. MR. BECK.

I cannot close this article without referring to one or two most flagrant misrepresentations put forth by Mr. Beck, of Kentucky, and which are contained in a speech which he has caused to be printed in the Globe since the adjournment of Congress, in reply to the figures relating to the expenditures which Mr. Dawes presented when he made the Conference report on the Tax and Tariff bill. Mr. Beck has achieved a reputation for fairness which he never deserved. Under an exterior semblance of justice, he conceals the most malignant and unscrupulous partisan spirit in Congress. His oldest opponents have withdrawn that confidence they once placed in the candor of his utterances. I will only take one or two examples from his speech to prove the justice of this criticism. The figures he presents fairly bristle with ingenious falsification. Here is a specimen: He deliberately charges Mr. Dawes with having purposely omitted from his table of expenditures for 1871-72 the expenses of the Post-office Department, with the design to make the total appear twenty-five millions smaller than it really was; and at the same time with including the expenses for the same Department in his table for 1860, with the design of making a comparison unfavorable to that year of Democratic administration. Now the very reverse of this is true, and Mr. Beck has simply impaled himself. The gross revenues and expenditures of the Post-office Department never enter into the accounts of the Government. They did not in 1860, to which time Mr. Beck refers. If he will examine the finance report for that year, from which Mr. Dawes took his figures, he will find that nothing but the deficiency entered into the account; and he will further find, unfortunately for his figures, that the deficiency for that year, over and above the receipts of the Department, was $8,196,009 26—thanks to the profitless accommodation of his slave-holding confederates—while for 1872, the deficiency has been just $3,578,750, so that the Post-office service of the country now costs the people, over and above its receipts, actually $4,617,259 26 less than it did in 1860. The revenues of the Department are, each year, regularly appropriated to meet the expenditures of the Department; but this does not carry them into either the debit or credit side of the account. If Mr. Beck, to suit his own purposes, insists upon putting them in as expenditures he cannot of course object to their being counted as revenue; and when he has turned round and paid off the expenditure by the very revenue which he has put in he may consider himself equal to the task of lifting himself over his own arithmetical muddle by the waistband of his breeches.

Once more, Mr. Beck: When you stated that the proceeds of sales in the Navy Department, $11,000,000, have not been covered into the Treasury; that the money cannot be used by the Secretary of the Treasury, but can be drawn out by the Secretary of the Navy, "whenever he has any other case like the Secor claim to pay or repay," perhaps you did not mean to utter a series of flat-footed, unmitigated falsehoods. But if you had been candid and honest enough to make open inquiry at the Treasury Department—where you have been making surreptitious inquiry of late—you would have learned the fact that this money now, as heretofore, is covered into the Treasury, and that the check of the Secretary of the Navy upon it has no more potency than your own. CYMON.

BOATING.

Rowing Notes at Home and Abroad.

The Wah-Wah-Sum Boat Club, of East Saginaw, composed chiefly of our hardy pioneers and lumbermen, again captured the laurels in the regatta of the North-western Rowing Association, held at Erie, Penn., on the 11th inst. The Neptunes, probably overawed by the appearance of their more formidable opponents, declined to row, offering as a reason that the water was too rough and unfit for shell rowing. The Wah-Wah-Sums rowed over the course, three miles, in their four-oared shell, without shipping any water, in 24 minutes and 46½ seconds. In the six-oared race, for the championship of the Association, same course, they rowed their old boat and carried a coxswain, defeating the six-oared boat Citizen, a new shell, belonging to the Undine Club, of Erie, in 19 minutes and 57¼ seconds. Undine boat 24 seconds later.

Advices by mail state that Robert Fulton, of St. John, labored under many disadvantages in the rowing race with George Brown, of Digby, especially in regard to his boat, which did not carry him well, her bow burying at every stroke. Another match may be looked for between the two in consequence.

The friends of O'Leary are not at all satisfied with the result of the recent race on Lake Hunsicamond, and they have signified their intention of making up a purse to enable O'Leary to make another match with Ellis Ward. O'Leary would like to get on a match with Patsey Harrington to row a three-mile race for $250 a side after Aug. 1.

Regattas were held at Vollejo and Sacramento, Cal., on the Fourth, and both were well attended. In the Vollejo regatta Capt. Armstrong's gig captured the first prize in the first race, making the distance 2½ miles in 22 minutes, 30 seconds; prize $50. In the single scull race Mr. Landers, of the Pioneer Club, won the first prize, $60, rowing over the same course in a shell, in 18 minutes. The four-oared outrigger race, which was the grand feature of the day, was won by the Pioneer, of San Francisco, in 19 minutes. The principal race in the Sacramento Regatta for four-oared boats, was won by the Denny brothers of the Capitol Boat Club of Sacramento, the Undine's boat, also of Sacramento, coming in second.

The boating interest is also looking upward in New-Orleans, the St. John Boat Club initiating racing on the Bayou St. John with a handsomely contested club race, in the early part of the month. Another boating organization is about being organized, and then the spirit of friendly rivalry will furnish interesting items from that locality.

Dick Deeley, who created such fundeniable interest in the single-scull contest at the regatta on the Schuylkill, is rather dissatisfied with the result and states that he is both anxious and willing to row his opponent, Geo. Engelhardt, a three-mile turning race for a prize worth $500.

CAPE MAY.

Its History and Present Status—Philadelphia Characteristics—The Native Jerseyman.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CAPE MAY, Friday, July 12, 1872.

While the ravishing strains of Hassler's orchestra still linger in my memory let me whisper to your readers some of the delights of an existence at Cape May this most glorious Summer weather. New-Yorkers know little of Cape May save from hearsay. One hundred and seventy-five miles down the Atlantic coast, where the Delaware River pours itself into the boundless deep, is Cape Island, if your readers can imagine the propriety of designating any place Cape Island: but it is quite true. The place is at once a cape and an island, for a stream of water runs around it from Delaware Bay on the south to the Atlantic on the north. The place embraces within its water boundaries some six thousand acres, about one-third being in a state of cultivation or improvement. This, then, is the Summer home of the aristocracy of Philadelphia, and a very pleasant home have they chosen, with its sea-breezes and its unapproachable bathing-grounds, and its drives and pretty lawns sloping to the water-side. The growth of Cape May in the estimation of the public has been slow and sure, for the Philadelphian is conservative, and is slow to make or unmake friendships for man or place. Many years ago, before fashion decreed an annual hegira to the watering-places, a few old bachelors, or, may-hap, an occasional well-to-do merchant, with his family, found their way to the sea-shore, and, in course of time, a few people were found enterprising enough to erect a hotel, and then came a rich burgher or two and erected cottages, and so, year by year, the summer population has increased, until today it numbers about seven thousand souls in round numbers, to which should be added the respectable—respectable in number only—array of "camp-followers," whose business it is to follow in the wake of fashion and pick up the crumbs that fall from her table. Proprietors of bath-houses, club-houses, saloons, boat-keepers, stationers, billiard-men, and so on ad infinitum. Cape May excels not so much in the number as in the quality of its hotels. A real Quaker City passion for absolute cleanliness seems to pervade every detail in the domestic economy of these elegant hostelries, and the Stockton, now two years old, is one of the finest specimens of sea-side hotel architecture in this country. A feeling of permanent coolness seems to steal over one as he enters its portals; wide, massive, elegant in all its details, it presents at a glance all one would have, and its situation is quite charming; but Congress Hall, the grande palais of the island, is the head-quarters of the highest ton Philadelphia boasts, and its splendid lawn, admirable situation, excellent domestic management and unparalleled orchestra stamp it at once the abiding place of the creamiest crême. Gushing representatives of Mme. D'Hervilly's Chegaray Institute, their first Summer after graduating, meet here the latest accessions to the Philadelphia Club, and under the influences of the "Beautiful Blue Danube," not altogether unassisted by the beautiful blue Atlantic, exchange the latest gossip of L'Impératrice fashion, while fond mammas look on and purr in sweet content, and hope, O! so much, that something will come of it all; but they seem to forget that out of nothing comes nothing. To be sure, these gushing goslings may, in a moment of inspiration, pledge their undying affection, their never, no, never! ceasing vows of eternal constancy, but what comes of it—what to either, all these vows before the Summer is ended? I don't believe in watering-place engagements. Out of at least twenty I have known in the last two years, but one is likely to eventuate in marriage. In this case the gentleman is very worthy and very poor: the lady is rich, and it is a case of true love; at least they think it is—which is just as well in the long run.

There is something inspiriting in the place that "thrills and fills one with a joy unfelt before," and the cooling breezes of the evening, when the sun sinks to rest, beget a moralizing tone, and one finds himself likening the waves to all sorts of unheard-of things, and the murmur of the waters to the voice of an agonized being whose every hope has faded,—his all of life a blank. Arm-in-arm the couples break away from the crowds and stroll adown the sands, and never stop until they reach the light-house on Diamond Beach, while others find it pleasanter to go up the shore toward the inlet. The ceaseless plashing of the waves suggests something spoony to each of them, and coy Luna peeping from behind a cloud and reflecting her face on the mirror of the sea, full many a time causes the impulsive heart of youth to dance and ripple like the waters, and bury its thoughts as far beneath the surface as it may until glorious orb of night ventures fully into view, and the Adonis takes heart of grace and gently steals his arm around the yielding waist, and eyes meet eyes, and—and—"I guess we had better go home now, for mamma may be worried, you know," she whispers; but they don't seem to go, and before the evening has spent itself Cupid has pierced both hearts with that fatal arrow, and—they sometimes wish he hadn't before the Summer is over.

The Winter population of the place consists of a motley array of thin-shanked, spilt-nosed Jerseymen, sometimes known as sand-bags, from their uncontrolable habit of alighting on every one who seems to present the least evidence of a superfluity of the world's dross, and hanging on until the last drop of blood is gone. In the Winter they gather at the groggeries and variety stores, (variety-store here is what any country grocery-store is at any place,) and discuss the probabilities of the coming season. "D'ye reckon we kin put on another wagon to Skellinger's Landing next season?" says one of them. "Wall, I don't know. Will it pay, Shadrack?" "Y-a-a-s, I kinder reckon it will. I took a crowd of City chaps up every day in the yaller waggon, an' I 'kin jes' do that same nex' Summer." The dealers in bathing suits sit and patch and sew all through the weary Winter months, and put on an extra piece of flannel, retired at a cost of half a cent, and slyly chuckle because they see in the future ten cents extra for that. The Jersey women make bath-towels the size of an handkerchief—an absolute fact—and in Summer give you two of these to dry yourself after you emerge from the sea. Let some "City chap" have the hardihood to venture down to Cape May during the Winter; every Jerseyman, with the fish bones sticking through his clothes, will have his pedigree and that of his family before night. Cape May in Winter is simply fearful. Cold, dead, lonely, monotonous. The inhabitants show very plainly the results of the Winter's siege, their principal diet consisting of fish, one can almost imagine fishes eyes in their head-pieces, and their mouths look for all the world like those of porpoises, and their hands seem to have turned into fish-hooks; but Summer comes apace, and an occasional "square meal" serves to rub off some of this irregularity, but they remain for the most part the same unkempt, uncombed, unwashed specimens of Jersey humanity from one year's end to the other.

This season promises no stirring novelties. We will have concerts three times a day on Congress Hall lawn, an occasional ball, semi-weekly hops, daily bathing and the sherry cobbler following closely in its wake, flirtations, gossip, driving, walking on the beach, and—home in September to renew the fight with the world and forget for a time the pleasures of a sea-side residence. Queer Freak of a Boston Girl.

From the Boston Globe, July 13.

The young lady, Miss Edith F. Wallace, who mysteriously disappeared from the Dorchester District, Boston, on June 13, has been found and returned to her home. Her story in explanation of her disappearance is that she obtained a suit of clothes belonging to her brother, which she donned in a wood near home, where she left her own apparel, and then, after having her hair shorn close to her head, she proceeded to Fall River and worked for about two weeks in a cotton factory. Becoming dissatisfied with this kind of employment, she hired out with a farmer, and did light work for a few days. In neither of these places was her sex suspected. She came to Boston a few days since, and having no visible occupation, and apparently no friends to care for her, she was arrested as a vagrant, and, under the name of James Wilson, was sent to Westboro. Here her true sex was discovered, and this fact was communicated to Col. Tufts, who in turn notified Capt. Quinn, Deputy Chief of Police. The latter, knowing that the description answered that of Miss Wallace, sent Officer Hines, in company with Mrs. Wallace, and visited Westboro yesterday, where the mother at once recognized her lost child. All the mysteries in the case now appeared to be cleared up except one, that the inmates of the house did not discover that in each of the young man's clothing was missing. With this clue the local officers could probably have found the runaway within a day or two. The members of the family have stated from the beginning that the girl's shabbiest suit, which it appears she left in the woods, was all that was missing from the house. Upon this the hypothesis of suicide was set up, and every pond, well, creek and clay pit in Dorchester has been thoroughly inspected and dragged with grappling irons. One of the officers, who has tramped the entire shore frontier of the ward at low water at various times, is probably now well qualified to act as a member of the Coast Survey Corps. The explanation of the adventure seems to be that the girl was dissatisfied with her home, and, being of an independent spirit, thought to carve her own way to fortune.

THE ALBERT MEMORIAL.

The Monument to the English Prince Consort in Hyde Park, London.

From the London Standard, July 2.

Yesterday morning her Majesty the Queen favored, as proverbial, with delightful weather, visited the grand memorial to the Prince Consort in Hyde Park, on the occasion of a further installment being exposed to public view, namely, the whole of the superb sculptural enhancements—the alti relievi on the podium of men distinguished in poetry, painting, sculpture and architecture; the four upper groups of agriculture, manufacture, commerce and engineering, and the four grand lower groups of Europe, Asia, Africa and America. The Queen first went round the monument and examined the four grand groups of the territorial quarters of the globe, which are placed at the angles of the base, commencing with Asia, then passing in succession to Africa, America and Europe, evidently taking much interest, as was natural, in the remarkable group of America, which in the significance and poetry of its conception has a pointed reference to some affairs of political moment now transpiring. Her Majesty then ascended the steps leading to the podium, and noticed the fine series of alto-relievi by Armstead and by Phillips and the upper groups at the angles by Weeks, R. A., by Thornycroft, by Lawlor and by Marshall, R. A. To each of the artists present—and they were all those engaged on this memorable work, save one whom death has removed from amongst us—Her Majesty expressed her satisfaction, as well, indeed she might for, after the display of marble sculpture here concentrated, there can be no more question as to the extent, capability and reality of this domain of art in England. We know of no such truly magnificent collection to be seen anywhere else, and, while bearing due testimony to the beauty and perfection of the numerous, familiar and deservedly so much admired antiques—the pick of the best works of the best men in all time—looked upon as types and models, it is something for the glory of this country that in a decade of a single century she could produce at once from among her own modest sons ten men capable of maintaining the high reputation of their art in a manner to challenge comparison with the famous efforts of past ages in all parts of the earth.

After her Majesty's departure at noon admission within the inclosure was permitted to the holders of special tickets, and visitors invited by the Executive Committee, most of whom in their inspection availed themselves of the hand-book published within the last few days by Mr. John Murray, under authority, and in which the whole of the details, and the different ideas which have been sought to be expressed by the artists, or which have influenced the Executive, are set forth. On Wednesday the boarding which forms the inclosure will be totally removed, and the whole of the monument will be then open to the public gaze, saving the central and principal figure of the Prince, which is the sole object that remains unexecuted. Of this intended figure there is a wood-cut in Murray's hand-book; upon it opinions will continue to differ, as they have done, until it is finally submitted in its actuality, and then will the character then established by the test of public opinion. The official statement made respecting it is that a modification of Mr. Foley's model is to be cast in bronze, and the statue erected on the pedestal in the course of next year. Up to the present date only the architectural features of the monument were properly visible, and the importance of yesterday's act, therefore, consists in putting forward the thoughtful and earnest labors of English sculptors, and we are glad to find that in many quarters a high appreciation has already taken root, and which will undoubtedly extend the wider and more general as the observation of their admirable productions becomes more general. Whatever may be the rectitude of either of the differing opinions held as to the architectural part, and of the gilt and colored ornamentation of the baldachino, with its floria spire, its granite pillars and bronze figures—and we know how much at variance these opinions have been and are—its present dazzling aspect will make it popular to the masses, and this popularity will doubtless continue as long as its brightness lasts. We regret, however, that allusions to the original idea of an obelisk should be injudiciously dragged forward at this juncture, when everybody is content to accept the monument in its totality as a fine erection, and a task accomplished; for the present shrine, whatever its merits or demerits in critical judgments, really had its origin in the powerful influence of the architects, and not because the original proposal was not approved in high places, or was impracticable of execution.

Following the order in which the Queen proceeded, we may briefly comment on the general qualities of the respective works. The first to be noticed is the group executed by Mr. Foley to represent Asia—this, we regret to say, we cannot admire so much as the others, and in which a total absence of any reference to our important colonial dependencies in Australasia seems a grave omission. Plainly speaking, a great deal more might have been made of a territory renowned for its ancient civilization and celebrated for its ancient commerce—a territory to English minds more suggestive of superbly-attired princes and warriors than of Persian posies or mendicant Chinese. There is among the curiosities of the popular museum near by the Memorial, a musical organ, once the property of Tippoo Saib, made as a tiger biting at the throat of a prostrate English soldier—a rude and cruel affair, but which brings to the mind vividly the extent of the ameliorating influence of European civilization upon Eastern ferocity of passion, and seems at least suggestive to a naturalist that the tiger is equally an Asiatic as well as a more graceful animal than the cumbrous elephant, and that some allusion to our power and our vast and rich possessions in India would have been appropriate and desirable.

Next comes Theed's group of Africa, which is exceedingly graceful and beautifully executed. Particularly admirable in it is the figure of Abyssinia. There is nothing to be desired, to be added or diminished to this fine composition, not even an allusion to English travel in that land of the scorching sun and of river mystery.

America, by John Bell—whose many graceful and poetic conceptions have raised him to the highest position among modern sculptors—is the finest of all the groups, in our own, as well as in general estimation. Its superiority is particularly manifested in the composition and in the delicacy of the sentiment, as well as in the distinctness with which the story it tells is expressed. The representative figure of America, riding on the wild and shaggy bison, is a fine and spirited conception; while the frank admission of the United States leading the way in the affairs of the vast Western Continent, while Canada, with true loyalty, still presses the rose of England to her breast, displays a prominent and estimable fact, acknowledged without jealousy alike by Sovereign and by people here.

The last, but not the least worthy of admiration, of the four grand territorial groups is Europe—the mythic fiction of Europa being treated in an unexceptionably innocent way. The group is nicely composed; a little too quiet, perhaps, but pleasant and graceful. The one mistake is that it does not point outwards to the angle. Merit it has, but were it even otherwise we would speak kindly of the labors of one who has passed away, and whose last work is said to have a touching interest akin to that of the last picture by Murillo. We have the less hesitation in making this delicate allusion to the anxieties of McDowell's last hours as it cannot harm the dead, but ought to be a cause of benefit to the living, for the glory of a national work should be free from the tarnish of unremunerative toil.

Of the smaller groups on the horizon of the podium, we may say of Agriculture that it is very nice—the upper figure notably graceful. Manufacture and Engineering follow in merit, but Thornycroft's Commerce is unmistakably the best of the four. The sculptures of the podium deserve every praise, and the palm of merit can be given to neither Armstead nor to Phillips, but must be fairly shared alike—each series having its special characteristics. The selection of the individual poets, musicians, painters and sculptors, as representing the highest attainments in their respective vocations, was undoubtedly a difficult task; but the omission of Byron and Walter Scott is certainly open to comment. Neither is the attitude of our great master-dramatist, Shakespeare, listening to the strains of Homer, at all appropriate, for it will be remembered that so far from following the "wondrous blind old man," he actually, in his "Troilus and Cressida," shows himself so disgusted with the character of Achilles that he makes him bring in a number of Myrmidons to slaughter Hector. We congratulate Mr. Gilbert Scott on his appearance among the goodly company upon the northern side.

A Swiss Prison Pay-Master Absconds to the United States and Gets Arrested.

Mr. D. C. Crowley, one of the attaches of the United States Marshal's Office, arrested a man named Ahlander, in the steamer Arnot, at 5½ o'clock, in the afternoon of yesterday. Ahlander left Statien, in Switzerland, on the 13th of June last, having become a public defaulter to a very large amount. The accused was pay-master of the prison at Laverone, in Switzerland, and, at the time he absconded is supposed to have been in possession of quite a very large amount of money. United States Marshal Crowley has been in possession of a telegram giving the height, age, appearance, &c., of the criminal for several weeks past.

Yesterday he boarded the Arnot on its arrival, and immediately recognized Ahlander as the absconded prison pay-master. A photograph in Crowley's possession corresponded precisely with the appearance of the accused. There being no United States Marshal present at the time, the prisoner was escorted in a carriage to Ludlow-street Jail. He will be brought up today for examination before Commissioner Shields.

THE GREELEY FRAUD.

How the Tammany Alliance is Accepted by Former Subscribers of the "Tribune"—Stop my Paper—No Horse Greeley for Rosins—White Hats Not Wanted for Iowa—An Insight into the War States are Pledged for the Cincinnati Candidate.

We present below a careful collection of letters, from correspondents who set forward in a very clear manner, the reasons why Republicans and Democrats, having a proper regard for principles, cannot vote for Mr. GREELEY.

A farmer of Lincoln, Me., writes:

"The Greeley political frauds don't thrive much this way unless they are thoroughly dressed with putrified Democracy and watered with the tears of the soreheaded, disappointed, ex-office-holders of the Republican Party."

J. N. Mc, writes from McArthur, Ohio, under date of June 22. He orders three copies of the WEEKLY TIMES for a year, and adds:

"All who read the TIMES cannot praise it enough. They think it the best Republican paper they have ever seen. The Republican ranks are unbroken here. We are firmly standing by our guns, confident of victory. GREELEY's ambition and the Democratic thirst for the spoils of office are appreciated."

W. E. R., of Coxsackie, in this State, thus replies to the Tribune's announcement of the formation of a Greeley Club in that town:

"A Greeley Club is said to have been formed in Coxsackie, Greene County, N. Y., with H. P. LIVINGSTON, President, and 318 members. Now, in regard to this club, there is no person of the name of LIVINGSTON in this town, and only enough Greeley men in this town to form one three hundred and eighteenth of the number, and this one Greeley man has never held an office of any kind, and never will, with the help of any party."

J. A., of Orleans County, New-York, under date of June 17, writes:

"Inclosed you will find two dollars, for which please send the WEEKLY TIMES to ——, for one year from the receipt of this. These are both Tribune subscribers, who are discusted with its treason, and do not propose to have anything more to do with it. No Kuklux, treason-sympathizing and supporting papers for me, whether it be the New-York Tribune, or any other rebel organ."

J. S., of Enders, Dauphin County, Penn., gives an idea of the Democratic feeling for Mr. GREELEY in his section of the country. After referring to a subscription forwarded, he says:

"You can hear leading Democrats in this place every day give vent to their opinion in regard to GREELEY's nomination, like this: 'I can never stomach H. G., I would sooner vote for U. S. G.'"

D. N. H, an old tar of the Sailors' Snug Harbor, Staten Island, has sent us a number of verses, of which the following are a fair sample:

And though Democrats all, both the great and the small
Sing the praises of Horace so freely,
They will say on the sly, it is all in my eye,
For we never can vote for old Greeley.

And if they in their boat should take Horace afloat,
For a while they may sail very nice;
But when tempests arise in the November skies,
The old hulk will go down in a trice.

So if Horace and Grats have the wisdom of rats,
They will scamper before 'tis too late,
Join the ship of the free, that can breast every sea,
And keep Grant at the helm of the State.

W. L. M., of Welchville, Oxford County, Maine, incloses a subscription for the TIMES with the following request:

"I wish you would tell the New-York Tribune people that they are played out around here. They used to have a large club, but it has gone up, as all such clubs do go up. Please tell them also, that in the village of Welch, out of about five hundred inhabitants, there are not three Greeley men at the most, and these are waiches, waifted, crossed."

W. H. N., of Hinsdale, N. Y., says:

"I have been a subscriber for the Tribune for ten years past, and until recently had supposed that Mr. GREELEY was a stanch Republican. It seems very strange that a man like him should sacrifice all those principles which he had so vigorously supported, and that he should now turn right square around and indorse and advocate those of the Democracy. Can I support such a man? No, never."

J. H. L., of Millersville, Lancaster County, Tenn., under date of June 21, writes:

"Silently one by one of old GREELEY's patrons drop off and place themselves by the side of the NEW-YORK TIMES. The spirit of THADDEUS STEVENS still lives in the hearts of his late constituents. They are all, as Hon. GLENNI W. SCOFIELD says, 'for the man who whaled, and against the man who bailed, JEFFERSON DAVIS.'"

J. H. A., of Danes, Schuyler County, Penn., forwards a subscription to the TIMES, and takes occasion to compliment us for our warfare on the thieves and scoundrels of this City. In referring to the candidature of Mr. GREELEY he says:

"I have taken the Tribune for quite a long time, and would be glad to do so still, but we cannot keep up a club of subscribers here. We have two or three broken down childish old Democrats who stand by old HORACE, and may their gray hairs descend in peace to their political graves. I am traveling most of the time in the counties of Steuben, Schuyler and Tompkins, and I find GREELEY stock everywhere very low, and almost out of market. GRANT is all right. Never stood so well as today in this section.

W. J., a veteran observer of the political situation in Sullivan County, New-York, writes as follows:

"Please send me three more copies of the WEEKLY TIMES for one year. Inclosed you will find $3. Twenty-five copies of the Tribune used to come here at one time, now not a single copy comes. The people drop it almost to a man. If HORACE runs on both tickets he will get badly beaten in Sullivan County."

W. N. S., formerly of Chemung County, New-York, sends a subscription to the TIMES. His connection with the Tribune he relates thus briefly:

"I took the Tribune from the first paper until four years ago, and have got up a club at every Presidential campaign of from twenty to one hundred. Now Mr. GREELEY has gone back on us. He sends only three papers, that I know of, for this place."

J. W. P. R., of Moundsville, West Virginia, under date of June 27, writes:

"Inclosed find $5, for which add ten copies of your campaign edition of the NEW-YORK TIMES to the club of ten sent to my address. The political sentiment here is such that your paper has supplanted the New-York Tribune. The Republicans have almost universally dropped that paper since Mr. GREELEY's apostacy."

M. A. H., of Pemaquid, Me., says:

"Inclosed herewith find subscription for two copies of Campaign WEEKLY TIMES. There are no Greeley Republicans in this part of the Pine-tree State, so far as I can learn. Even the more honest portion of the Democracy are rather reluctant about swallowing so nauseous a dose; and the only unqualified support the Cincinnati nominees receive comes from what were known during the war as the most malignant stripe of Copperheads."

G. A. M. of Fairlee, Orange County, Vermont, writes us a long letter, accompanied by a subscription to the TIMES—in which he endeavors to refresh Mr. GREELEY's memory concerning his abuse of the Democrats. We extract as follows:

"I have been a reader of the New-York Tribune for thirty years, and have got up many clubs for it. At the time GREELEY signed JEF. DAVIS's bonds, we had a very respectable club here, none of the members of which took the paper afterward with the exception of myself, and I took it for GREELEY's past services and not for that foolish act; although I never could justify his abuse of those who (bought it a silly, unpatriotic performance, not deeming at the time that it was to be made a step to the Presidential chair. I got up a club last December with much exertion. About that time he began his attacks on GRANT, when many Republicans saw where he was drifting, and they refused to subscribe, and the few of those who did, are sick enough of his self-conceited boasting of himself and his condemnation of all who prefer GRANT. The Tribune used to say the Democratic Party had but two planks in its platform—first, to love rum; second, "to hate the negro." Without a belief in either of these ones, Democracy might be doubted. Now all that is required to make one dye in the wool is to love H. G., and hate U. S. GRANT.

The following letter from E. A. V., of Burlington, Iowa, a prominent resident of that city, tells how far it is safe to rely upon the promises of the gentlemen who engage to carry certain States for GREELEY and BROWN:

"Enclosed please find $1 for your 'campaign edition.' Success to you. We have no 'Greeley Republicans, in this region, and our townsman, Gen. FITZ HENRY WARREN, stated last evening, in the Fifth-avenue meeting, that 'he would carry the State for GREELEY.' This is funny to us Hawkeyes. Forty thousand majority for GRANT in November is our quota."

J. J. L., of Hopkinsville, Christian County, Ky., tells the old, old story of his disgust with the Tribune because of its change of principles. Here is what he says:

"Please find money order for $5, the subscription price of two copies of the SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES. I will soon send you still other names. I have been a reader of the Tribune for several years, but the recent change from a Republican to a Democratic 'organ' has disgusted me, and I shall, therefore, henceforth look elsewhere for good news and good doctrine. I hope you will have great success in extending the circulation of your invaluable paper, and with it the dissemination of sound Republican principles. You may look for a good report from Kentucky next November."

J. N. B., of Hartford, Conn., says:

"It may not be uninteresting to your host of Republican friends and constant readers, to know how the Tribune is being received in this down-eastern locality. A gentleman living not far from this, and who has been a subscriber to that paper, stepped into the Post-office of this village a few days since, and said: 'Mr. Postmaster, I have been a subscriber to the Tribune for fifteen years—stop the thing. Now, Sir, when I want a Democratic paper, I will subscribe to one, and take Democracy pure and unadulterated. I will

THE NEW REPUBLIC.

Parliamentary Proceedings—A Scene in the Assembly—M. Thiers in the Tribune—The Debate on the Raw-Material Tax—Scandalous Incidents—M. Rouher and His Reception—After Events.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Wednesday, July 3, 1872.

At the hour I closed my last letter a most singular scene was taking place in the Assembly at Versailles, and I take advantage of the first post to send it to you. To prevent a long translation I must sum up the situation. You are already aware that M. Thiers insists upon his protective policy and his tax upon raw material. The Assembly refuses to grant it, not only because it is considered a dangerous and futile mode of trying to raise the revenue required, but because the sense of the country is against it. Petitions are pouring in upon the Deputies, asking them to resist to the last, and I have already told you that Bordeaux, Marseilles and other large towns have gone almost unanimously for free trade. As M. Thiers continued to insist and had a new deficit ready each time one was filled by other means, the Assembly appointed a Committee of fifteen to examine the matter. The members were not chosen by lot, but were specially drawn from the men who were known to be strong in finance and men of great legislative experience. M. Rouher and M. Magne were upon this Committee. After several months of indefatigable labor, after studying the question thoroughly, after calling before it the most eminent political economists of France and England, after a complete examination of the English system and a consultation with all the great manufacturers and financiers, this Committee made its report. I need scarcely say that no Parliamentary report was ever more carefully prepared. The wisdom and experience of Thiers himself, of Rothschild, of John Stuart Mill, Michel Chevalier, and more than sixty others is embraced in this document. The result is given as follows: In answer to the question whether or not a tax on raw material could be made productive, ten members of the Committee said no, and five yes. To the question whether the revenue desired could be made immediately available, the Committee answered no unanimously. France is bound by certain treaties of commerce which do not expire until 1878, and the Committee finds the proposed tax incompatible with those treaties. After carefully going over everything, it was unanimously decided that for more than five years to come the Budget could not profit by this tax to a greater extent than five or five and a half millions.

M. THIERS IN THE TRIBUNE.

Naturally, when this was read all eyes were turned upon the President. He did not keep the Chamber waiting. With a bound he sprung into the tribune, denied flatly the conclusions of the Committee, and treated its members as "specialists" who only saw matters in detail. Instead of five millions he would prove that his taxes would produce forty or forty-two millions at once. M. Thiers began to give some figures when a voice cried, "Prove them." The President said that he had not come prepared for that, but his estimates were made, and he would read them the next day. M. Rouher said that the Committee had given several months' labor to this question, and the results were now printed and in the hands of the Deputies. In a matter of so much consequence it was necessary to go largely into figures, and the best head in the world could not follow them from hearing them read. He proposed, therefore, that the President's estimate should be printed, and studied beside that of the Committee. M. Rouher was, you will perceive, acting like a prudent statesman, and in all this there was not a word to which exception could be taken; but even these few words were subject to many interruptions, and the orator to a number of insults. Seeing the temper of the Chamber, M. Thiers tried to spring his bill upon it. Once more he bounded into the tribune, and began a personal attack upon M. Rouher. The Left was wild with delight. M. Thiers accused Rouher of having nearly ruined the country by his treaties of commerce, and now he would try to complete his work by taking from the nation its right to manage its own affairs. After this preface the report will be understood. I begin where the President is in the tribune:

THE DEBATE.

M. THIERS—In all times the right to impose taxes upon raw materials at home has belonged to every nation. This right the Empire compromised; but, happily, did not quite destroy. We have not quite lost the right to revise our treaties, as M. Rouher would insist. But think of the responsibility you bring there against yourself! Happily, you flatter yourself for having done more harm to the country than you really have. [Great applause on the Left.] In spite of the treaties you made our liberty exists, and we are using it to negotiate with the Governments concerned, which have shown great good sense and the best of dispositions toward us."

M. Rouher started for the tribune. The Left began to cry, and organized a cabal against him. Every time he tried to speak his voice was drowned by murmurs and cries of all kinds.

Another VOICE—The liberty of the Commune!

THE SPEAKER, (M. Grévy)—M. Rouher has the floor, gentlemen, (to the Left,) to speak of a personal matter. [Cries of Hear! Hear!]

M. ROUHER—It will not be just not to permit me to give a few words in reply.

On the RIGHT—Silence! It is a veritable scandal!

M. ROUHER—The President of the Republic has spoken of the responsibility which I assumed in signing the treaties of commerce.

M. ROUHER—I do not shrink from that responsibility. [Cries of "Oh! Oh!"] My convictions—

M. ROUHER—(Calmly)—My convictions upon this subject have not been modified, and I believe that I rendered a service to my country.

At these words the band of interrupters rose in a body and gave vent to veritable howls. A sort of consternation reigned on the right and in the galleries. Among the most excited we remarked M. Littré and M. Pascal Duprat, M. Jules Favre, the former friend of Laluyé, and M. Lasserre. M. Grévy seemed to have lost his head. As for M. Rouher, placing his back against the Speaker's desk, he waited partially, and at length silence came in a measure.

M. ROUHER—I still believe that I render a service to my country——

Cries on the LEFT.—Oh! oh! his country! We know what the country thinks of thee! (contemptuously using the second person.) Asses! Quite enough of you! The vote. Asses!

M. GLAGNTAIN (rising in his place)—Continue, Sir. The esteem of the country is not the monopoly of any party.

At these words the fury of the cabal turned against M. Malartie. Fists were shaken at him—insults cried at him. The agitation was complete. The members of the Right and the Centre rose in a body and tried to impose silence upon the perturbators.

M. GALLONI D'ISTRIA—Advancing to the front—Mr. Speaker, why don't you preserve order?

The SPEAKER—I know my duty, Sir.

Several VOICES—Fulfil it, then.

Other VOICES—One would imagine that we were at the club of the Rue Graïée.

The SPEAKER—Turning to the Left—M. Rouher demanded the floor for a personal explanation—he has the right to speak. I ask you to keep silence. [Applause on the Right.]

M. ROUHER—If you had patiently heard me for a moment, you should now have finished. [Murmurs on the Left.] Yes, I still think that I am doing my country a service in defending here this principle of international commercial treaties. [Explosion of voices and murmurs.] It is said that the liberty of the nation is compromised, but the engagement is on a basis of mutual benefit. [Enough! Enough! M. Jules Favre ordered: "You have lost the country; get out of the tribune," and was on his feet, greatly excited.] It must not be forgotten that most nations of Europe, enlightened England at their head, are also governed by their treaties of commerce, and England, the most jealous country of the world in the matter of her commerce and industry, has thirty-six. I am ready, then, to assume the responsibility of signing these treaties, and what I have done I should do again——

I will follow no longer this curious scene. At this point the Deputies again rose and were having injuries of all sorts at each other. M. Jules Favre and M. Langlois acted like mad men, while M. Laurence Pickat, author of the Alexandrine I sent you which Col. Deufert launched at Chauzarnier, was howling constantly, and if not imitating animals was, perhaps, reciting some of his Homeric imitations. For a pose and a millionaire he has uncommonly good lungs. M. Rouher succeeded in saying that all he asked was a printed copy of the estimates made by the Government, and he was then hooted out of the tribune. M. Thiers approached the Chamber with his bill, but he failed to get it in, and the "incident was emptied" to give a literal translation to the French expression for closing a scene.

AFTER INCIDENTS.

Yet, the matter would not have ended so but for the arrival of the treaty signed on Saturday with Count Arnim. As M. de Remusat began to read a voice on the Left was heard shouting something, and as the speaker ceased M. Favre cried: "Now let us hear from Rouher!" There was a general laugh and cries of derision. A little further on M. de Remusat spoke of the troops "now occupying our soil." "Now let us listen to M. Jules Favre!" cried a sonorous voice on the Right, emphasizing the Monsieur, which the former left out. The Left seemed to take this as a general insult. The retort was so apropos that the Right nearly burst their buttons with laughing. They roared with delight. M. Jules Favre rose, pale and trembling with anger, shaking his clenched fist now toward the sky, now at the Right, and, literally foaming with passion, pronounced something which was drowned by the laughter and the ironic cries of the Right. This is no appreciation of mine, but is in the compte rendu, or abridged report which the stenographer gives to the daily papers, and it ends with these words: "Enfin, the negotiator of Ferrières was satisfied, and was led away by the hand by his bosom friend, M. Pascal Duprat. A long and painful agitation followed this incident."

ASHBY.

THE NEW ERIE BOARD.

First Meeting of the Directors—Appointment of Committees—Action in Reference to Fraudulent Contracts.

The new Board of Erie Directors held their first meeting yesterday morning, at the Grand Opera-house, Twenty-third-street and Eighth avenue. Mr. Peter H. Watson, the new President, presided, assisted by Mr. H. N. Otis, Secretary. The directors, with the exception of Gen. John A. Dix, G. Talbot Olyphant and Frederic Schuschardt, were all present.

Executive Committee—Messrs. Doren, Duncan, Morgan and Barlow.

Finance Committee—Messrs. Cisco, Lansing, Babcock and Travers.

Committee on By-laws—Messrs. Barlow, Pruyn and Johnston.

Mr. W. Watts Sherman resigned the office of Treasurer, and the election of a successor was postponed.

The following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That in view of the extravagance which has characterized the legal expenses of this Company for a number of years past, that all appointments of counsel and attorneys now existing be terminated, and that Messrs. Barlow, Larroque and McFarland be appointed the counsel and attorneys of the company at an annual salary of $10,000, and that any further appointments or expenditures in respect to legal business of this Company be made by the President and Executive Committee of this Board.

Resolved, That in all cases were bonds or undertakings in behalf of the Company are necessary to be given in legal proceedings or otherwise, that the Treasurer for the time being be and is hereby authorized, under the authority of the Executive Committee, to use any of the securities or moneys of the Company to the extent necessary for such purpose, as an indemnity and security for the execution of any such bonds or undertakings by the sureties, and that any securities thus used be reported to this Board.

The following preamble and resolution were also adopted:

Whereas, The late Board of Directors of this Company were diligently engaged from the 11th day of March last to the end of their official term in an investigation as to the management of the affairs of this Company under the previous so-called Gould administration, and

Whereas, From such action and investigation, this Board has reason to belive that during the period last referred to, a large number of fraudulent, burdensome and unjust contracts were nominally imposed upon this Company which are voidable at its election; therefore,

Resolved, That the Executive Committee be requested to forthwith examine and inquire touching all such contracts with any person or corporation made before the 11th day of March, 1872, and in regard to the force and validity thereof, and that they report their conclusions to this Board.

A Committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Barlow, Pruyn and Johnston was appointed to prepare by-laws and regulations for the government of the Company.

The meeting then adjourned.

Mr. Russell Gurney on the Washington Treaty.

The Right Hon. Russell Gurney, M. P., met his constituents at Southampton, on July 3, for the first time since his return from Washington, on the occasion of a Foresters' dinner. The right honorable gentleman spoke of his reception at Washington, and said the Americans deeply sympathized with any matter in which the great British public took any interest. It was not right to suppose that there was in America any feeling of hostility toward England; indeed, he believed that on both sides the Atlantic the greatest interest was felt in all that concerned the real happiness of either nation. Responding to the toast of his health, Mr. Gurney said he had but a poor account to give of himself, having been for nearly half the session engaged on the other side of the Atlantic. He came back as soon as he could, and would have come back sooner; indeed, he had gone upon the condition that he should return at Easter, but just as he was about to leave, a telegram came from the Foreign Office, saying it was very important that he should remain, the negotiations with the United States having then reached such a position that it was thought his return to England and an adjournment of the Commission might have a bad effect. He believed that more interchange of visits was required between England and the United States. We ought to know more of each other. He could see that for America a Republic was best suited, just as was a Monarchy for England, and he was warned by those who knew best about it, against our copying American institutions too rapidly. The object we should have in view was to cultivate friendly feelings with a kindred nation. The people of the United States were perfectly willing to respond to such a feeling, and we should be consulting our best interests and theirs by promoting this harmony, and he felt convinced it had been much contributed to by the Treaty of Washington. He was exceedingly struck when he first landed by the strong and earnest desire every where expressed to be on friendly terms with England. Unfortunately, difficulties arose which created for a time unkindly feelings. The Americans thought we were behaving ill, and were annoyed at the angry expressions used on this side of the Atlantic, but when these feelings, as at the time he believed they would, had passed away, the Americans showed themselves anxious that a settlement should be arrived at. It was of the utmost importance to this country, to the cause of civilization, and he might say to the cause of Christianity, that the treaty should be carried out, and that the grand principles recognized in it should be acted upon. He did not care twopence what the result of the Geneva Arbitration might be. Whether this country had to pay two or three millions more or less was a small matter, so long as both nations felt that justice had been done, and that the questions in dispute had been honorably settled.

Disastrous Collision—Loss of Twenty-One Lives.

The Manchester papers of July 6 say that a collision occurred off the Isle of Wight about 12:35 on Tuesday morning, which resulted in the loss of a screw steamer, and, it was believed, not less than twenty-one lives. The Lapwing, iron screw steamer, 600 tons, Capt. Cullen, was proceeding up Channel, bound from Liverpool to Rotterdam, with general cargo, and having on board twenty-eight persons, including bow passengers. The vessel with which she came in collision was the iron bark Abbey Holme, bound from the Thames to Brisbane, with general cargo. At midnight the latter was on the starboard tack a few miles off the Wight, and before going below the Captain saw the Lapwing a few miles off and put his vessel about. He was called on deck by the mate at 12:35, when he saw the steamer about a quarter of a mile off. He hailed her but she still came on, and the Captain of the Lapwing put his helm hard aport. The Captain, seeing that a collision was inevitable, put his helm down to weaken the force of the collision, and his vessel went right into the Lapwing, striking her on the port quarter, just above the engine-house. She lifted rapidly and sank. Her engineer, the quartermaster and the stewardess jumped on board the bark while the vessels were alongside, and four others were picked up by other vessels; the rest, it is thought, went down in the Lapwing. The bark had a hole five feet by three feet in her starboard bow, and a hole on the eight-foot water-line. Her fore compartment was filled with water. The pumps were kept at work, and the holes were stopped. About 11 A. M. the bark was met by the Government tug Camel, which had been sent from Portsmouth to her assistance, and by her towed into Portsmouth harbor.

Abstraction of the Dodge Correspondence—Reduction of Nelson's Bail.

In the civil suit in the Court of Common Pleas, brought by Wm. E. Dodge and others against Abraham Nelson, charged with fraudulently abstracting from the former valuable commercial correspondence, the facts of which have already fully appeared in the TIMES on the occasion of the criminal examination, Judge Joseph F. Daly has rendered a decision reducing the amount of Nelson's bail from $100,000 to $10,000. The defendant is still confined in Ludlow-street Jail. In the two criminal charges growing out of the same acts, Nelson had already given bail in the sums of $5,000 and $500, respectively.

To Advertisers.

☞ For the accommodation of up-town residents, advertisements for insertion in the TIMES will be received at No. 54 West 32d-st., junction of Broadway and 6th-av.; No. 308 West 23d-st., opposite Grand Opera-house, and No. 1,241 Broadway, between 30th and 31st sts., at same rates as are charged at office of publication.

☞ The NEW-YORK TIMES has opened a branch office in Brooklyn at No. 111 Fulton-st., junction of Fulton and Main, where advertisements will be received until 5 P. M.

☞ Throughout the Presidential canvass, we shall publish fuller reports of meetings and conventions in each State than any other New-York journal. Very full dispatches will be forwarded by telegraph, supplemented by careful letters. Our desire is to place before the public the latest and most trustworthy information, and we have made ample arrangements for that purpose.

Concerning the bargain alleged by the Binghamton Republican to have been concluded last Fall, between HORACE GREELEY and the Tammany Democrats, the Express of this City makes a very silly attempt at explanation. It says that "nothing is meaner than falsehood"—a precept which would, if followed in the Express office, keep half its pages a blank; and goes on, "unless it be the use of strictly private correspondence to make capital against a candidate for public office." So there was a correspondence, then, after all? That is the very thing which GREELEY'S shambling advocate has hitherto denied. JOHN COCHRANE had better gag the Express, as he gags GREELEY, or it will have all the fat in the fire.

The same wonderful paper defends the support of GREELEY by the Democracy on this ground—we quote literally, for we would not presume to alter or improve the truly beautiful language in which this Tammany organ always expresses itself:

"There are some things that die, everybody knows that. Only a few things never die, nay, are ever immortal—the soul of man, perhaps, the only thing. But everything else in man dies, or changes; so that what was in him at 10 or 20, is never there, at 30 or 40. The times change, just as the flesh and blood of man change. What Mr. GREELEY has been, is of no more importance to us, now, than," &c., &c.

Is not this perfect? GREELEY has all changed, you see. People have been wondering at his sudden transformation, but we cannot be surprised now that we know that the Greeley of today is a new Greeley, changed in everything except his diseased craving for office. To complete the brilliant argument of the Express, the change above spoken of ought to take place every year instead of once in ten years. And suppose GREELEY should change back again? The other day he told the deputation from Baltimore (greatly to JOHN COCHRANE'S horror) that he was as "good a Republican as ever." If the Democrats could elect him, how are they to be sure he will not "go back" on them?

"We are happy to announce that Senator REUBEN E. FENTON will address the citizens of Albany, on Thursday evening next, at Tweddle Hall. His speech will relate to the political questions of the day, but principally to the financial questions before the country. Senator F. is not a stump speaker, but he is thoroughly versed in political questions, and particularly in such as relate to finance and taxation. He will have a full and appreciative audience."—Albany Argus.

It is true that REUBEN E. FENTON has some knowledge of questions "which relate to finance." He has gained his knowledge in a very curious manner, and bought it rather dearly at one time, although he has been rewarded since. FENTON is the head of GREELEY'S party in this State. He is one of the most dishonest—we mean the word to be taken literally—men in this or any other State in the Union. Before the canvass is much older, we engage to prove this statement to the satisfaction of SAMUEL BOWLES, Mr. HALSTEAD, and any other respectable man who may happen to be left in the Greeley-Tammany crowd.

Mr. GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN, at the close of one of those wild performances which he calls lectures, announced to the audience that any one might now ask him questions, whereupon an old woman rose and asked, "What makes a pot-leg burn in two in the middle?" The public jester stood dumbfounded. Occasion had been ministered to him, and yet he was silent. He had not wit enough to answer, because it can't burn in two at both ends. The Democratic Party is like the pot-leg. It has gone in two in the middle. All its substance and strength have been eaten out of it, and it consists just of the two ends; the crafty managers at the top, and the dull and debased crowd that they manage at the bottom. What once enabled the pot to stand are now the Democrats who prefer GRANT to GREELEY. In place of these, the bungling craftsmen are trying to weld in the Tammany Republicans, and when November comes we shall see what a botch they have made of it.

It is the desire and right of the Republican Party to be judged by facts. It has held the Administration of the National Government for the last three years in undisputed possession, and the records of the Government show how it has discharged its trust. We give this morning some very full statements based on that record, showing how the public service has been administered as relates to the important business of collecting the taxes. We ask every candid reader to carefully examine these statements—which cannot be refuted—and then ask themselves whether the result is likely to be improved upon by HORACE GREELEY, and the men whom he will be compelled to appoint to office. Remember that among the latter are a large number of Tammany politicians to whom he owes his nomination, and ask yourselves, how they would promote efficiency and economy in the collection of taxes. That is a question any man of sense can answer.

Only the other day we had Mr. GREELEY'S personal organ advising the Southern Democrats to refrain from violence toward the negroes till after election. Now we have Senator DOOLITTLE, down in North Carolina, warning the negroes that it will be "wiser" to divide their votes than to cast them against "the white man's party," for then both parties will be interested in preserving their right to the suffrage. The obvious inference is that if the negroes do not divide their votes, their right to the suffrage is in danger. What clearer proof could be required that the tendencies of the new Democracy are identical with those of the old?

The case of The People against TWEED and others has at length reached a General Term of the Supreme Court convened in special session. The question which is thus dragging its slow length along to the Court of Appeals is simply whether an action for the recovery of funds fraudulently obtained from the tax-payers of a given locality can be brought in the name of the people of the State. All this interminable argument over a very simple point, and the disgusting delays of justice which attend it, might have been saved but for the Greeley and Tammany coalition in the last Legislature, by which HOFFMAN'S veto of Mr. TILDEN'S Oyer and Terminer bill was rendered valid.

The Duty and Interest of New-York.

Last Fall, the honest people of this State made a strong effort to elect a Legislature and State officers whom they deemed faithful to the cause of reform, hoping and intending to overthrow the Tammany Ring, at that time in possession of every branch of the State Government. The people succeeded in electing their candidates, but they were not so successful in accomplishing the purpose for which the candidates were chosen. The Governor was hostile to reform; enough of the legislators went over to the enemy to break the two-thirds majority needed to carry reform measures against the Governor's veto; and the people could get only what a majority vote could give. They obtained the impeachment of one of the corrupt Judges, and the resignation of another, while a third was forced to trial before the Senate, and removed. Beyond this every effort for genuine reform was defeated by a combination between a portion of the Fenton Republican Assemblymen and the Tammany leaders, backed by the active co-operation of Gov. HOFFMAN, himself a participant in some of the worst rascalities of the Ring.

Do the honest voters of the State wish to see the plot of last Winter extended to next year, and made to embrace the nation as well as the State? Do they wish to see HOFFMAN, the chief contributor to its success, confirmed in power, or transferred to a field of greater influence and activity in Federal affairs? Do they desire to see his fellow-conspirators in the Tammany Ring fastened still more immovably on this State and City, with an Assembly devoted to their interests, the Executive in their possession, and the Treasury of New-York City again opened to their rapacity? If this is the desire of the electors of New-York, they have only to encourage the Greeley movement. However its real character may be concealed, and although some honest men may be deceived by it, that movement inevitably involves with it the fate of the Tammany Ring. Whatever else may be accomplished by it, the Ring is sure to be the gainer. We leave the people to judge whether they can get anything but loss and disgrace from a scheme that promotes the gain of Tammany.

It is only necessary to glance at the composition of the Greeley party in the State, and especially in this City, to see that the old Tammany gang is engaged with it and controls it. Do any of our readers—Democrats or Republicans, Liberals or Conservatives—suppose that the Tammany men join the Greeley Party for nothing? In some cases they are receiving their pay in advance. For instance, TWEED and SWEENY would have been brought to trial before an honest and impartial Judge by this time had not the bill which provided for this end been vetoed by HOFFMAN, and its subsequent passage prevented by the Greeley Republicans. Or another instance—BRENNAN, the Sheriff, is continually defended by the Greeley organ against our exposures, though those exposures are explicit, based on complete official evidence, and absolutely accurate. And in general, the Tammany gang is receiving proofs of the fidelity of the Greeley Party to its interests by the careful avoidance of all offense on the part of the latter to the former, in speech or writing, and by the active warfare carried on in the Tribune against the most effective enemies of the Ring.

The Tammany men make no secret of their appreciation of the devotion of the Greeleyites to their cause. Brennan clubs, Shandley clubs, Mike Norton clubs, and the central organization of the order, the Americus Club, are being constantly formed or revived in the interest of GREELEY. In the broadest sense of the inscription on the banner in the City Hall Park on the 11th of June, "Tammany responds to the nomination of HORACE GREELEY by the Democratic National Convention." In point of fact, it would have been more correct to have said that "the Democratic National Convention, in the nomination of HORACE GREELEY, responds to Tammany." The nomination was a part of the Tammany plot.

But it was not the whole. That plot contemplates the fastening of Tammany leeches on every part of the Treasury of the United States. It contemplates the placing of unscrupulous hacks like HOFFMAN and FENTON, in the Cabinet, with swindlers like SWEENY and BRENNAN engaged in the collection of taxes, while the old system of plunder and peculation is to be re-established in our City, for the benefit of other Tammany aspirants, sprung up to take the places of the promoted leaders.

Will the honest portion of either the Democratic or Republican Party aid in carrying out this precious scheme? We do not ask them to believe in its existence on our mere assertion. We ask them to reflect on the evidence we have indicated, and which is repeatedly appearing all about them. Let them attend the local Greeley meetings in this City, or read the reports of such meetings in the Sun or Herald—Tammany papers—and ask themselves what this obvious, conspicuous activity of the old Tammanyites means? Sensible men can make up their own minds on this matter. We only ask them to do so.

Judge Barnard.

One of the last acts of the last Assembly of the State of New-York was to impeach GEORGE G. BARNARD, Justice of the Supreme Court, of "mal and corrupt conduct in office." To maintain this impeachment, thirty-nine distinct articles of accusation were drawn up, and their prosecution confided to a Board of Managers. It is to determine whether these charges are sufficient to warrant the removal from office of the accused Judge, and to further disqualify him from holding office in the future, that the Court of Impeachment will today assemble at Saratoga. That Court, it is hardly necessary to add, is composed of the members of the State Senate, reinforced by the seven Judges of the Court of Appeals. A simple majority of this Court is all that is necessary to secure conviction and removal.

Trial by impeachment, as we have all long contended in regard to these Judiciary cases, is the only satisfactory method of disposing of charges against the purity of the Bench. The presence of the highest judicial authorities in the State renders it impossible for the accused Judge or his newspaper advocates to get up a silly cry about "doubtful rulings," and imperfect appreciation of the laws of evidence. On the side of the people, there is the obvious gain that the abstention or the political leanings of a handful of Senators cannot interfere with the course of justice. The Senators who stay away from the Court of Impeachment will not have the slightest influence upon its verdict; and as the whole weight of the Court of Appeals will doubtless be thrown upon the side of right and justice, it will require a wonderful compound of venality and impudence to enable a lay member of the Court to vote on the other side.

We know that Judge BARNARD and his agents are prepared to spend money very freely, if they find it can be spent with any favorable result. Much as we should have liked to see men on the Board of Impeachment Managers who are conspicuous by their absence from it, we can hardly doubt that Judge BARNARD will be tried in a manner perfectly satisfactory to the public. Everybody concerned with this highly important judicial investigation is pretty well convinced by this time that the people will stand no trifling on so momentous an issue as the purification of the Bench. The attempts of professional bribers to "fix" the required number of Senators would seem to be absolutely wasted, were it for no other reason than that in a full Court, nineteen votes would be required to defeat the ends of justice. Whichever way the question is looked at, it only requires a fair display of vigilance and fidelity on the part of the Impeachment Managers and their legal associates, to bring the trial of Judge BARNARD to a satisfactory termination. The attempt of a certain scurrilous newspaper to bully one of the Judges of the Court of Appeals into absenting himself from the impeachment trial, is the solitary instance we have had of an attempt to interfere between BARNARD and his deserts. This is, perhaps, the best evidence that could be produced of the inherent weakness of his case. It is hard for a man when the Sun alone defends him.

The Children's Fund.

The necessity of a fund for the relief of destitute children in exceptionally trying seasons being now acknowledged by the public, we hope to see such a fund placed on a sure and lasting basis. To make a wise distribution of it must always be a work of great labor and difficulty, for there are all sorts of impecunious societies in existence which, the moment they hear of a charitable fund being opened, pounce down with their "claims." It is not for such institutions as these that we appealed recently for assistance. We believe it is not for them that the public have sent us in their money, and therefore they may as well make up their minds at once that they will get none of it. We are not authorized to pay the debts, or make up the deficiencies, of any organized societies. The wish and intention of the contributors to the fund is to provide means for relieving destitute and sick children, and for sending them on occasional excursions into the country. That was the object for which we invited contributions—to that object alone shall the money be devoted. We are also anxious to have it understood that the fund is especially intended for young children. We take those who are fourteen or fifteen, but only when they accompany younger brothers or sisters.

That much good has already been done cannot be doubted. The pleasure afforded to the children who have been treated to a day's excursion, almost surpasses belief. To understand it, it is necessary for one to consider the circumstances in which these children are placed—never seeing a green field; never playing, except in the gutter or under cart-wheels; seldom getting a decent meal; knowing absolutely nothing of kind attentions. These little ones, when they find themselves out for a good day's holiday, with plenty to eat and drink, and all kinds of innocent sports open to them, get more pleasure in a few hours than most of us enjoy in a year. And the cost is very little. Fourteen hundred children have already been treated to most pleasant excursions at a cost of $802 40, which sum includes the price of crockery and other articles to be used in future excursions.

In other directions, also, much suffering has been relieved. The very interesting report which we published yesterday from Mr. CALDER, (Superintendent of the Rivington-street Lodging-house,) shows how far a little money may be made to go. The doctors whom we have employed have attended several cases of severe illness among children, who would otherwise have suffered, and, too probably, have died unaided. The loss of life which this system of calling in medical advice may prevent, is beyond calculation. Read again what Mr. CALDER says:

"Today we have sent Dr. LONG to attend three sick children living in miserable quarters at No. 63 Columbia-street. Also, two at No. 135 Suffolk-street. Dr. CRAMPTON has attended a case of cholera infantum at No. 819 Fifth-street, two sick little ones at No. 94 Willett-street, one at No. 108 Ridge-street, one at No. 286 Second-street, and another at No. 31 Willett-street. Besides this a very destitute woman, with three young children, living in the rear of No. 73 Goerck-street, has been furnished with a small supply of rice, tea, milk and vegetables. Similar aid has been extended to four of the families for whom we have provided medical attendance."

Could money be applied to works of truer charity than these? Here is another case described by our reporter:

"At No. 819 Fifth-street, the missionary found Bridget Donlan, a sick widow, with two children sick from cholera infantum. Broken down from her own ill-health, the poor woman could hardly hold up her head; yet night and day she devoted herself to the care of her two little ones. She was too poor to obtain a doctor, consequently the missionary supplied her with a medical attendant, and orders were given for the supply of such articles as were considered needful. The relief was none too soon, and the poor widow expressed her thanks in tearful accents."

We need not quote further, but we hope that the reports we publish day after day are carefully read by the contributors to the fund and the general public. In that way alone can they keep themselves thoroughly informed as to the true value and beneficence of this movement.

As we have before stated, should there be any money left in hand after our work is done, we shall select three of the contributors and request them to act as trustees, and hand over the balance to them toward the foundation of a permanent fund. There need be no fear, therefore, that too much money will be sent in.

Wholesale Slander Manufactory.

For good solid lying (we thank thee, HORACE, for teaching us that word) commend us to the organs of the sorehead party. The wrath of the leaders of that party, at not being able to supply themselves and their friends with offices, breaks forth privately in blasphemy, but publicly in slander. Their tactics are simple. They mean, if they can, to lie Gen. GRANT out of the election. Here was the Sun, whose editor was turned from an abject flatterer of the President to a virulent but impotent hater, because he was refused the Collectorship of the Port, a post for which he begged and schemed for years previously. That paper published some ten days ago a story, with all the particulars, about a bargain for an office, in which it was said that Mr. W. D. FARRAND paid $2,500 to the President's brother-in-law to be appointed Consul to Peru, and, again, $1,000 for another office.

This story the Tribune, the head of whose late editor has been in a state of chronic soreness any time these fifteen years, and particularly during the last year, has more than once repeated. Now, it was hardly necessary to say that there is not a word of truth in this story; but it was said. The tale is a falsehood, a slander; and its author and repeaters have deliberately borne false witness against their neighbor. This they know, but about it they care nothing. If they have any evidence to prove their assertion, according to all laws of evidence or of honor, they are obliged to produce that evidence, or they stand convicted slanderers. But they do not produce it, and they go on, in the strength of their brass and the mightiness of their cheek, simply repeating the falsehood; hoping by bare iteration to drive a sufficient belief of it into the public mind, to do Gen. GRANT some injury. He is debarred by his position from noticing such slanders; and so these backbiters have the cowardly satisfaction of knowing that they cannot be called to account. Keep on repeating lies, and somebody will believe them—such is the Greeley-Dana motto in this canvass.

But, perhaps, even if the President's hands were not so tied, he might allow these malicious falsehoods to pass unnoticed, just as Mr. BANCROFT DAVIS has. He has seen himself denounced, day after day, in one of these papers, as a bribe-taker, and with a calm reticence much to be admired he has taken not the slightest public notice of the accusation. And it has done him not the slightest harm. He is a foolish man; but the public do not believe that he is a bribe-taker. So it will be found in the end with President GRANT. The mud will be thrown, and will look black for a moment; but like that cast at the men in white raiment seen by Christian on the Delectable Mountains, it will fall quickly away, and what was spotted for the instant will seem whiter than before. These sore-headed gentlemen plainly believe that a lie well told and stuck to is as good as the truth. That they will stick to theirs no one can doubt; but they will find that the effect of their lying tales has been spoiled by the dull and slovenly way in which they have been told, and that they, not Gen. GRANT, will be the sufferers.

The man recovered of the bite,
The dog it was that died.

Precious Gems.

It would very much enhance the interest attaching to gems if their history were more easily traceable. No doubt a large proportion of the finest stones have had very varied fortunes, and if they had speech could tell us tales compared with which the famous "Adventures of a Guinea" would be but a dull story. Not the least interesting would be told by the whilom precious possessions of the sovereigns of France. What a world of emotion must they have witnessed! Where are the rings and bracelets which MARIE ANTOINETTE wore on that dreadful day when that wretch, young DRUET, recognized the fugitives at Varennes? Perhaps adorning the shoulders of some Newport or Saratoga belle. At the Ex-Empress' sale, a fortnight ago, a ring was sold of an Ex-Empress even more unfortunate. This was described as "a Marquise ring with a pink diamond, surrounded by brilliants, formerly the property of the Empress JOSEPHINE." What hours of triumph and of agony this, too, had probably seen. Joyous hours at Malmaison, when she was enjoying a greatness thrust upon her, such as had never been thrust on mortal woman before, and times of ineffable bitterness when she was sacrificed to the insuperable ambition of the most selfish of men.

Probably a large proportion of the finest gems have passed part of their time in la belle France. Prior to 1789 there were superb collections in that country. Indeed, it proved very fortunate for their possessors that they had sunk so much in this apparently very unremunerative investment, for it stood them in stead when the flight came. From 1790 to 1792 an enormous stock of gems was thrown on the London market. One of the persons who turned these misfortunes of his neighbors to the most profitable account was the celebrated THELLUSSON, a native of Switzerland, who had acquired wealth as a merchant in London. He bought largely, at ludicrously low prices, it is said, and thus helped to heap up the vast fortune which he bequeathed in a manner which he imagined would make it in future days the greatest in the world—one hundred and forty million pounds sterling. But l'homme propose; it is only some one hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year; for those rogues of the "long robe," and others like unto them, picked so many golden pieces off it en route. RUNDELL & BRIDGE, the Crown jewelers, who were to the royalty of England what the famous BŒHMER & BOSSANGE, of diamond necklace fame, were to poor MARIE ANTOINETTE, also "did remarkably well;" and Mr. RUNDELL'S great nephew and heir, Sir JOHN NEILD, Bart., M. P., no doubt is in some degree indebted for these handles and appendages to his name to the terrible energy of Messrs. ROBESPIERRE, DANTON, MURAT & Co.

The very finest diamonds now come over here. Probably many purchased at poor EUGENIE'S sale are even now on their way to these shores. In London they will not give the price. Not long since a diamond merchant there broke up a hundred thousand dollar necklace, composed of stones selected with great care. He could not find a purchaser. Jewelers charge immense prices, but then they have to keep an enormous capital in stock, which for months, sometimes years, yields nothing.

When Mrs. SYDNEY SMITH married, the young couple had no ready cash wherewith to furnish their modest home, but, by good luck, Mrs. SYDNEY had inherited a splendid pearl necklace. They took it to HAMLET—then the TIFFANY of London—and were hugely delighted to exchange it for crisp bank notes amounting to $2,500. Years after, when the smiles of fortune had amply descended on them, Mrs. SYDNEY was making a purchase at HAMLET'S, when her eye lit on a splendid pearl necklace. "I knew every bead at once," she said. The price was demanded. The jeune élégant who was serving her took it lightly up, and replied, as though it was the merest trifle, "Fifteen hundred guineas, Madam." Such is the slender margin which the leviathans of jewelers reserve to themselves against loss. The fashionable auctioneers of such articles must also make a pretty good thing of the sales. It recently came out in some Chancery proceedings, relative to the sale of the late Marquis of HASTINGS' jewels, that CHRISTIE & MANSON would not conduct the sale under seven and a half per cent., at which rate they must have cleared on the Empress' jewels over fifteen thousand dollars in one day. This firm must nightly offer up prayers for French revolutions.

"Legitimate Expense."

That large proportion of the "intellectual department" of the Herald which is "European" seems to have got the upper hand at present. What may have been the original extent of the acquaintance with the English language enjoyed by these "jintlemen," we cannot venture to determine. Recent researches into the nomenclature of the Arab tribes who consort with flying jackals and eat mandarins, near the ruins of Thebes and Luxor, appear to have dissipated any slender knowledge of the meaning of English words which the "Europeans" of the Herald ever enjoyed. This remarkable journal expressed, on Sunday, its supreme contempt for common honesty in the administration of local affairs. It makes a laudatory notice of its friend HALL'S valedictory message the occasion for repeating its former bull about having an "honest" disregard for the "legitimate expense" of any public undertaking. What idea this phraseology represents to the mind of the bewildered "European," it is impossible to conjecture. What the statement amounts to is briefly this: The people of New-York greatly desire public improvements, but are perfectly indifferent as to whether they are made to pay fifty cents or a dollar for every ten cents worth of work, because they know that money honestly expended in the development and progress of the City will reimburse the tax-payers, &c. This is about as clear as the position of the Herald can well be made, and until it sends some of its "intellectual department" to school, the public are not likely to get anything more definite out of it.

With an air of refreshing ingenuousness, this same commentator on City affairs assures us that "the Mayor's Message is, on the whole, encouraging." Perhaps this admirer of "Misther" O'HALL had not the privilege of reading the Mayor's last message, or perhaps he has a slightly imperfect acquaintance with what has occurred in the interim. Was there ever a more "encouraging" document than that which OAKEY HALL issued when the City was drifting into bankruptcy, and when his pals were stuffing their pockets with money wrung from the swindled tax-payers? Soaring on the wings of prophecy, this enthusiastic and trustful scribe promises us an accession of "spirit, enterprise and wise liberality" in local affairs at the next election. That is to say, with the success of the GREELEY ticket in November we shall see public works once more conducted "regardless of the legitimate expense"—a new Beach-street triangle "improved" at the trifling cost of some ninety thousand dollars an acre, the Court-house completed for another four millions or so, and the Herald, Telegram and Tribune inundated with Corporation advertising at their own rates. This may be a cheerful look-out for "Europeans," or Bohemians, who don't pay taxes. The general public of New-York will fail to see the rose-colored side of such a prospect.

The Amenities of Local Travel.

Mutual consideration is the basis of all social happiness—a maxim which travelers in public vehicles sometimes forget. The prevailing rule appears to be for everybody to make his neighbors as uncomfortable as is consistent with his own ease. The favorite attitude, for example, of passengers in our street-cars and omnibuses is to cross one leg over the other, and project the foot nearly or quite across the narrow passage. The effect of this pleasing manœuvre is to cause every one, on getting into or out of the vehicle, to stumble over a sort of thick-set chevaux de frise of legs and boots. Another agreeable part of local travel is the necessity many people labor under of climbing into an omnibus by means of the knees and shoulders of their companions. This device in the hot season is apt to produce, to wearers of light-colored clothing, an effect more picturesque than desirable. Then again, the entrance of a new comer into a public vehicle, no matter how scantily filled, appears often to be regarded by his predecessors, especially if of the gentler sex, in the light of a personal intrusion. Nobody makes room until urged to do so, and the point is yielded then reluctantly, and with an air of contempt, if not of positive loathing. There are few things more curious to the observer of human nature than the common cause which is tacitly made by the occupants of a car or stage, against each person who enters after them.

A little concession and thoughtfulness in trifles like these would add greatly to the comfort of every-day life, and keep many tempers unsoured, especially in this trying weather. People would do much to add to their own comfort, in the long run, by a little more consideration for the comfort of others.

MINOR TOPICS.

It is also suppressing all political news relating to the progress of the Republican campaign, and filling its columns with all kinds of slanders about Republicans who are guilty of opposing HORACE GREELEY. Yet it is "not an organ"—it is an "independent Democratic Tammany paper," in the receipt of about fifty thousand dollars a year from Tammany.

Judging from an article in the London Times, quoted in our columns yesterday, John Bull was never in so good a condition for settling claims as now. "Business is at high tide; orders have been flowing in upon our manufacturers faster than they can be executed. The Board of Trade returns show that the amount of commodities imported and exported continues to increase beyond all precedent. The Clearing-house total of the half year is larger than it ever has been before." Then follows a warning that bubble companies are growing up, just as mushrooms do in rich soil after bountiful rain, but the only effect of these Montagu Tiggian undertakings is that the sanders are consumed by the sharks. The national wealth is not depleted, and the streams of golden blood will flow freely into our coffers without the patient being sensible of the loss.

Apropos of the subject of lunatics and lunatic asylums, which has been brought once more under discussion by the late edict of the King of Belgium, there is a case in Vermont just now that attracts a good deal of attention. A certain Col. STOCKTON, formerly of Allegheny, Penn., and at one time Commander of the Pennsylvania Volunteers, contrived to escape from the Asylum for the Insane, in the former State, where he had been confined at the instigation of his kinsmen, on the affidavit of a Brattleboro physician. He had previously succeeded in obtaining his discharge from the lunatic asylums at Dixmont and Harrisburg, Penn., through the influence of Congressional and other friends. While effecting his escape in the present instance, it appears he sprained an ankle and broke one of his fingers. The officers of the asylum had made an attempt to carry him back, but were prevented from so doing by an order from Chief-Justice PIERPONT. There has since been a hearing granted, the result of which was that the Chief-Justice sent the case to the Court of Chancery, in the meantime giving the custody of STOCKTON to the authorities of the asylum. The Burlington Free Press thinks there are many points of the case bearing a close resemblance to that of Naval Commander MEADE, which will be remembered as having occupied our Courts in this City a few years since. Col. STOCKTON claims that he is not insane, and that the crusade against him originated in the desire of so-called friends to possess themselves of his property.

Gen. SCHURZ is advertised to speak in North Carolina on Friday next. It will be remembered that he, like Mr. GREELEY, pretends to be a Republican. Yet he goes to North Carolina to contend against the Republican ticket in a canvass which the Liberals of that State declare does not involve national issues. His only object must be to help the Democrats, and that is, after all, the object of the entire Greeley movement. Perhaps Mr. SCHURZ will explain in his speeches what it was that dried the tears he shed at Cincinnati, how he has recovered from the "overwhelming discouragement" of FENTON'S triumph, and whether he is still "disgusted with American politics." On no other points would he command such complete attention.

Two incidents in the meeting of the new Erie Board yesterday are worth noting as giving hopeful signs of the future. One was the passage of a resolution engaging permanent counsel for the Company, and annulling all appointments of special counsel. It was under the latter head that many of GOULD'S schemes came for subsidizing the political lawyers of the State. Another incident was the giving instructions to the Executive Committee to investigate all of GOULD'S contracts, with a view of getting rid of the fraudulent or extravagant ones. Nothing was said, however, of the suit to recover GOULD'S plunder. Is this to be prosecuted as it ought to be?

That acute political observer, Mr. WALTER BAGEHOT, has remarked that it does not follow, because the French are violent and disorderly in their National Assembly, they are incapable of parliamentary government. His theory is, that all large bodies of men are violent when exciting questions are before them, and the English Parliament is as capable of a row over DILKE'S republicanism as an assembly of the liveliest Frenchmen over LOUIS NAPOLEON'S private cash account. But it must be confessed the subjects on which Frenchmen can get beside themselves are very numerous, and of constant recurrence. To gain an idea of the lengths to which they go on apparently tame occasions, read the account in our Paris letter this morning of the "incident" attending M. ROUHER'S attempt to speak on the commercial treaties. It demonstrates one thing at least, that freedom of speech exists in France, though it is sometimes very unequally distributed.

AMUSEMENTS

Notes of the Day.

The second concert in which Mme. Peschka-Leutner is to take part will be given at the Academy of Music this evening.....Performances of the drama of "Notre Dame" now occur twice daily at Wood's Museum. The play, which is adapted from the French piece founded upon Victor Hugo's admirable novel, is full of romantic interest. Mr. Harry Seymour fills the part of Quasimodo, Mr. T. W. Keene that of Claude Frollo, Mr. A. H. Sheldon that of Gringoire and Miss Jennie Carroll that of Esmeralda. "Notre Dame" is to be performed throughout this week only....On Monday evening, the Vokes Family reappeared at the Union-square Theatre, and were greeted with great cordiality by a numerous audience. The excellences of the performances these artists offer have been often referred to in this place. The Vokes represent this week "The Right Man in the Wrong Place," the very amusing piece, the run of which was only interrupted, some time ago, by the pressure of earlier engagements, compelling the departure of the artists for other cities.

NOTES FROM THE PEOPLE.

Is It a Job?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A few doors from my dwelling in Amity-street there is an old engine-house, and I observe that the Fire Commissioner is fitting up the top floor in the most elegant style, to be used as a residence by a relative of a wealthy Alderman of the Nineteenth Ward. He is appointed janitor of his own apartments at a salary of $50 per month and found (in fuel). Now, Sir, as a tax-payer of this City I protest against this wealthy Alderman pensioning any more of his needy relatives on the tax-payers of this City, and call upon Controller Green to refuse payment of the bill for fitting up this establishment and the salary of this political mendicant as janitor of his own apartments. AMITY.

A Remedy for Strikes.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your issue of this day I noticed that the Association of Employers have issued circulars to business men, journalists, statesmen, divines and others asking suggestions or methods by which strikes might be averted or suppressed. Would it not be wise to spread those same circulars before the laborers themselves? All laborers are not in favor of strikes, neither are they willing to be guided or governed in their actions, politically, socially or otherwise, by those of their fellows that are forever trying to create a breach between the united interests of capital and labor. We are not so near the end of the world today but that more Franklins, Colberts, Fillmores and Wilsons may yet be found among the mechanics and laboring men of America. There are none that so well know the wants of the masses, or that are better prepared to advance them, when called for, than those of the masses that have educated themselves to their position; those that have intelligent minds and liberal principles. Of this class of men, there are many in our work-shops today—many of them that are better able to offer acceptable methods for the government of themselves, and fellows which would have a greater tendency to prevent strikes than all the suggestions and legislations that might be offered by those who have never had a home with the masses. Let a prize be offered for the best essay, and invite all hands to compete for the same.

SARATOGA.

The Greatest Contest in American Turf History.

Harry Bassett the Winner of the Saratoga Cup.

Longfellow, Though Badly Injured, Only Beaten by a Length.

The Great Horse Struggles Gamely to the End—Fastest Time on Record—Thrilling Description of the Scene.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SARATOGA, July 16.—Never, perhaps, in the racing history of the Saratoga or any other track has such a scene been witnessed as took place today—the scene attending the race between Longfellow and Harry Bassett, for Mr. Morrissey's colt Defender was out of the race. Up to a late hour last night the pool-rooms and club-house were thronged with speculators eager to put their last dollar on old John Harper's horse. The hotels caught the infection, and soft words and whispers gave place to lady-like discussions of the morrow on the piazzas, while the halls were almost converted into betting rooms. Greater swing was given to speculation about midnight when the clouds gathered around the moon, and there was every prospect that Jupiter Pluvius would be king of the race track today. But a cloudy morning gradually gave way to a bright sunny day—the hottest we have had since the meeting began. The grand stand was occupied much earlier than usual—every one hurrying from the breakfast table in order to secure a good seat from whence to witness the great race. Carriages followed one another in rapid succession, and pedestrians waded through the dust as though they cared nothing for it. All along the route one could catch scarce a sound save the words Bassett and Longfellow. On reaching the track I at once went to Harper's stables. Everything was as quiet and orderly as usual; Longfellow stood as meek as a lamb in his stall, and there was nothing to lead one to suppose that the great struggle between the rival stables would be over within an hour. Both sides were confident of victory, both depended on the merits of their respective horses, and both were wrong. The race was won and lost by one of the direst accidents that ever occurred on a race course.

So great was the excitement over the race, so large were the sums of money invested on either horse, that men seemed almost impatient over the delay caused by the running of the Saratoga Stakes for two-year olds, interesting as it was, and bringing out youngsters from the stables of Belmont, McDaniel, and Hunter & Travers. Impatience gradually developed into indignation as the ten colts and fillies who came to the starting-point seemed inclined to stay there all day. Mr. Wheatley may be a very good starter of three-year old and five-year-old horses, but he certainly does not appear to be very au fait with two-year-olds. He refused to accept two or three excellent starts in spite of the loudly and generally expressed disgust of the spectators, and detained the horses for nearly three-quarters of an hour before he would let them go. The race was a three-quarters of a mile dash, and was won by Mr. Bowie's colt Catesby, who beat Reviler and Springbok, the favorites, with ease.

At last the bugle sounded for the contest between the giants of the racing world; and as, first Longfellow and then Bassett galloped past the stand, the excitement was intense. Had they been Nilssons or Janauschecks they could not have received a greater ovation than was exultingly given to them. They took their places at the two and a quarter mile post, just above the stretch, and were off at the first start. It was most painful to look around and study the varied expressions of countenance. Some looked as grave as judges, others were nervous and trembling; others again looked as though bordering on an attack of acute mania. As the horses passed the stand for the first time, one uproarious shout rent the air, and every one hustled and jostled in spite of the earnest entreaties of the police that all would keep their seats. The horses swept round the lower turn at a tremendous pace, and when half way home were close together, Bassett leading by about half a length. At that moment John Morrissey cried out, "Longfellow's beat." It was too true. Something had gone wrong with the great horse, and his backers looked distracted. On struggled the game horse, keeping close on the quarter of his adversary, budging not an inch, holding his own magnificently, but unable to gain a foot on him. Down the quarterstretch came the pair at a pace unknown on the Saratoga track; the whip, the spur were plied; everything that a clever jockey could do was done; a yell went up from the excited multitude, and Bassett passed the judges' stand three-quarters of a length ahead of Longfellow. The scene which followed is indescribable. The colored jockeys and trainers yelled like maniacs, tumbled over one another, and fought to get to the udges' stand first. Hats and sticks literally darkened the air, and I am not sure that many a colored stable-boy was not tossed aloft for joy. In the grand stand men shouted and almost embraced one another; ladies, though half alarmed at the torrent of excitement, waved their handkerchiefs and parasols—and, for what? The greatest Roman of all his species was beaten through a cruel accident, which in all probability ends his racing career. When poor Longfellow failed at that half-way home point he had not broken down as many supposed. The plate of his shoe had broken in half, had turned up, and had torn the soft part of the heel, immediately under the fetlock. I saw him come to the Judges' stand after being pulled up, and, though I had not a cent of interest in the race, my heart was sore for him as he limped along. There was the cruel iron and the torn flesh, and the beaten hero, vanquished, not by superiority, but by a rare ill-fortune, only three-quarters of a length behind, and under such disastrous circumstances, and that, too, in the fastest known race—3 minutes 59 seconds. It is feared that Longfellow will never run again. The stable-boys had the greatest difficulty in getting him to his stable, and it is said that his injury is a permanent one. But what a disappointment to the disinterested lovers of sport, of whom old John Harper himself leads the van! Should Longfellow never again appear, his friends will always claim him as the superior of any horse of his day, and yet Col. McDaniel can claim that the Long Branch decision is reversed. It is sadly unsatisfactory; it is a termination to a racing career which bid fair to be one of the most brilliant the racing world has ever known.

It seemed that Dr. Underwood resumed his pool-selling with a weary heart. Loser or winner, he, as a true lover of horses, must have grieved over the manner of Longfellow's downfall. But business is business, and he had many clamorous customers demanding his attention for the third and last race for three-year olds. Buckden and Fury were the favorites. The horses got away at the first start, Mr. Belmont's gray colt Grey Planet two lengths behind. It was a splendid race. Mr. Belmont's English jockey rode his horse splendidly, bided his time, and at the turn into the quarter-stretch rode up to his horses, and opposite the grand stand passed them. But Buckden had another spurt left in him, and they passed under the cord together. The judges decided the race to be a dead heat, and the owners agreed to divide the stakes. So ended one of the most exciting days in the annals of racing.

THE SARATOGA STAKES.

The first race of the day was the Saratoga Stakes for two-year olds, $50 entrance, play or pay, with $1,000 added; three-quarters of a mile. There were forty-two entries in the stakes, and the value to the winner was $8,000, two of the nominations being void by the death of the nominator, J. S. Watson. The stake was a valuable one, and an army of youngsters were announced to sport silk on the important occasion. There were Hunter and Travers' ch. c. Reviler, by Censor, out of Jenny Rose, by Lexington; Hunter and Travers' ch. c. Saturn, by Planet out of Jenny H.; John Coers' b. f. the Nurse, by imp. Australian, out of imp. Zone, by the Cure. A. Belmont's ch. c. Count D'Orsay, by Kentucky, out of Lady Blessington, by imp. Eclipse; also, ch. f. Beetra, by Kentucky, out of imp. Bernice, by Stockwell; F. Morris' ch. c., by imp. Eclipse, out of Mollie Jackson, by Vandal; Gov. Oden Bowie's b. c. Catesby, by imp. Eclipse, out of Katie, by Two-Bits; D. Swigert's ch. c. Springbok, by imp. Australian, out of Hester, by Lexington; D. McDaniel & Co.'s ch. f. Cora Linn, by Lexington, out of Dolly Carter, by imp. Glencoe; M. A. Littell's ch. c. Fellowcraft, by imp. Australian, out of Aerolite, by Lexington; R. W. Walden's ch. f. Minnie W., by Planet, out of Edina, by imp. Knight of St. George, and Leonard W. Jerome's ch. c., by imp. Australian, out of imp. Weatherwitch, by Weatherbit.

Here was a dozen "infants," as unreliable as the weather clerk in April, and those who had lost heavily on the previous day's races, found it a very difficult matter to settle in their minds which was to be the probable winner. There were many mysterious whisperings and convocations of the betting "worms," and "points" were sought after with a pertinacity worthy a better cause. The betting market was therefore in that excited condition which the financial "dissertationists" would call feverish, and it was not until the pools were sold at the track, that any steadiness was manifested. Just before the start the strains moved in the speculating minds as here given:

Hunter & Travers	$325	$310	$135
Swigert	310	295	200
Belmont	220	135	100
Morris	85	100	55
Bowie	105	125	55
Field	100	100	55
Total	$1,155	$1,065	$600

The result of the race astonished the knowing ones, for Gov. Bowie's youngster came suddenly into fame by winning a magnificent contest.

THE RACE.

They were started in front of the stand on the fractional track. As usual with a lot of two-year olds, they came to the post fractious, especially Minnie W., and considerable delay was experienced in getting them off. At last the flag fell, and they were away in the midst of the impatient manifestations of the spectators. Jerome was off in the lead, with Reviler second, Electra third, Count D'Orsay fourth, and Morris fifth. As they went down the shoot they were enveloped in a cloud of dust, and they could not be seen till they came on the lower turn of the regular track, when Electra was seen to be in front, with the Morris colt second, Reviler third, and Jerome fourth. The race to the three-quarter pole was between Electra and Morris, who were together. Jerome coming up and taking second place, with Count D'Orsay fourth, the others running in a ruck. When they came up the homestretch, Catesby left his companions in the rear, and came with a rush, Morris, in the meantime, coming to the front. Catesby then took the second place from Electra, and challenged Morris. After running together for a short distance, Catesby rushed past him, and won a very fast race, in 1:17½, by a length and a half, Electra third, Minnie W. fourth, Count D'Orsay fifth, Reviler sixth, Jerome seventh, Springbok eighth, The Nurse ninth, Cora Linn tenth, and Fellowcraft eleventh. The following is the

THE SARATOGA CUP.

The second meeting of the two champions, Harry Basset and Longfellow, has been of more interest to the thorough turfman than the first from the very fact that the track here is so wonderfully good and fast that the strong points of the contestants would be displayed to advantage; and, further, the partisans of Harry Bassett asserted, with some show of reason, that he was not himself at Long Branch, and that the heat lays it all to the water. He met Longfellow at better advantage today, and how he succeeded the readers of the TIMES will see for themselves. Every race for the Saratoga Cup has been hotly contested, and it was at the inaugural race in 1865 that Kentucky made his great record of 4:01½, but as a four-year old, he carried but 104 pounds. In 1866 he, for the second time, contured the cup, and, with 114 pounds up, ran the distance in 4:04; but the most meritorious performance was that of Muggins, the great Jack Malone colt, in 1867, who, as a four-year old, carried 118 pounds and won the race in 4:03, thus giving Kentucky fourteen pounds. 1868 was Lancaster's year, when he beat the great Vandalcolt, James A. Connolly, and the game mare Fanny Cheatham in 4:14—slow time in comparison with the others, but if we remember rightly the track was heavy. In 1869 Capt. Moore won the Cup with Bayonet—a memorable race, from the perpetration of a fraud which created great excitement and asperity for some time after the race was run—4:12. In 1870 Helmbold took the honors and the Cup, running a fast race in 4:03¾. Last year Longfellow and Kingfisher were the only starters; and it will be remembered that the mighty son of Leamington, after running the first mile of the race in 1:40, finished it in 4:02¾. The race today was the eighth for the Cup; and although the field was small, it has created the most excitement, from the reputation of the horses. It may be aptly termed a "star performance." Just before the start the members of the McDaniel confederacy were walking about the quarterstretch with anxious faces, while the solitary form of Uncle Harper, with serenity of men, wandered about with the consciousness of the future having something bright in store for him. Longfellow was the idol of the day, and Bassett received a quantum of adulation which defeat could not lessen. Defender, the other contestant, was not noticed, he was but a stock performer in the drama to be enacted. In the pools, the son of Leamington was the favorite at the following rates:

Longfellow	$340	$260	$240
Harry Bassett	100	80	70
Defender	20	11	20
Total	$460	$351	$330

THE RACE.

They were started from the three-quarter pole. Every eye was riveted to the spot. The flag fell and they were all off together. On the stretch Bassett comes to the front and is making the pace at a terrible rate. They come to the stand, and a cheer greets them as Bassett passes under the string a length ahead of Longfellow, who was four lengths in advance of Defender. When they went around the turn the same hot pace was kept up, and Bassett would not let Longfellow reach his head. They approach the quarter-pole. Longfellow gets closer to the flying Bassett, and a cheer goes up from his backers, but when they pass that point his nose is only at Bassett's tail. Defender out of the race. As they rush along the backstretch Longfellow is urged forward and laps Bassett. The sight is a beautiful one and the excitement is intense. Now Bassett gets away again, and at the half pole is leading his great competitor a length, and again the cheers roll out over the course. Now again, on the lower turn, Bassett is crowded upon, and Longfellow is again lapping his quarter. The shouts continue and increase in volume, but at the three-quarter pole Bassett is away three-quarters of a length. Now they came up the stretch. Longfellow comes with a rush. The excitement is intense. He heads Bassett. The men are hoarse with shouting, and the ladies shout with them. They near the stand and the gallant Bassett suddenly shows his head to the front. Again they go to the turn, and again Bassett goes away from his competitor, and is now a length ahead. "Longfellow's heart is broken," shout the partisans of Bassett, but anon Longfellow crowds upon Bassett again, and the former laps the latter's quarter. They rush toward the half-mile pole, and Bassett is still half a length in the lead. They are now half a mile from home, and as they go round the lower turn Longfellow covers a great deal of ground, and is on even terms with Bassett, but the latter does not give way; he keeps up the tremendous and tireless pace, and pushes past the three-quarter pole a neck and shoulders in front. They now turn into the homestretch, and the scene beggars description. The policemen endeavor to make the people keep their seats, but without avail. White-haired men are young again. They never saw such a contest. They shout, they throw up their hats. The confusion is worse confounded. Up they come. Bassett is still leading, he is a length in front, and the excitement knows no bounds. They approach the judges' stand, and Longfellow gets the whip. It is no use, although he got up a little closer. Bassett never tires, and beats him home by a length in the fastest time ever made by two and a quarter seconds. The scene beggars description, and our pen fails in its haste to do it justice. It is wearied with the excitement of the day, and rests with the recording the mournful fact that Longfellow is hopelessly broken down. It appears that his shoe-plate broke, and curving up during the race buried itself into his foot

WINNERS OF THE SARATOGA STAKES.

The Saratoga Stakes were inaugurated in 1864, and the distance of the race was a mile, but it was changed in 1867 to its present length of three-quarters, probably with the view of gradually screwing the courage of the youngsters to the sticking place for the full mile in the Kentucky Stakes of the August meeting. In 1864 John Hunter's colt Saratoga, by imp. Knight of St. George, won it, beating two competitors, in 2:06½. The next year he captured it with his filly Ulrica, by Lexington, and beat three contestants, in 1:51¾. In 1866 old Col. Bush took it in with Redwing, Balrowbie's fleet daughter, beating a field of four in 1:51½. In 1867, the first three-quarter year, Mr. F. Morris' Eclipse's colt Relentless won it, beating five competitors in 1:20. The next year Col. McDaniel's Oakland filly, Oakleaf, won it after a dead heat with Mr. Morris' filly, by Eclipse, out of Stander Barbarity, in 1:21¾. The dead heat was run in 1:19¾. In 1867 Mr. Morris' b. f. Remorseless, by Eclipse, beat ten contestants in 1:18¾, and in 1870 John O'Donnell's gr. f. Mary Louise won it in 1:18½, and she was the only one that had beaten Harry Bassett until the latter met Longfellow. In 1871 Mr. Morris for the third time won the stakes with the Eclipse colt St. Patrick, beating a field of four in 1:20. Today's race was the ninth for the stakes.

THE MILE AND A HALF.

Bringing the day's sport to a close was a dash of a mile and a half for three-year olds, with the winners of the Belmont, Ladies' or Travers' Stakes excluded. There were three starters for this, as follows: T. B. and W. R. Davis' b. c. Piedmont, by Asteroid, out of Fairy, by imp. Knight of St. George; Hunter and Travers' imp. b. c. Buckden, by Lord Clifden, out of Consequence, by Bay Middleton; A. Belmont's gr. c. Grey Planet, by Planet, out of Eaglesa, by imp. Glencoe, and H. McGrath's b. f. Jury, by Lexington, out of Roxanna, by imp. Chesterfield. This gave promise of being a close and exciting affair, although Buckden was a very heavy favorite. He had proved himself fast at the Jerome Spring meeting, and was a winner there. Grey Planet was considered good at the distance, and was accepted by the "soothsayers" as the probable winner for no other reason than that he cost his present owner $10,000 when a two-year old, and has not won a race since. Of course his time had come, but on the quiet, the sagacious old stagers invested a little on Piedmont, from his excellent running in the two-quarter dash of yesterday, when he surprised his owners. Mr. Davis, however, told us that he did not think he could carry the weight the distance in this race. Mr. McGrath's Jury was backed by the Kentuckians, his lucky venture in the Flash Stakes having given his stable a hold on their pockets, and it is reported that when Tom Bowling "shuffles off this mortal coil," his stuffed carcass will ornament the porch of McGrathiana, and mark the change of fortune in the career of the genial host. In fact, McGrath has been so heartily congratulated that he is weary, and takes his siesta regularly on the balcony of the Grand Union, guarded by little angels, who whisper higher promises in his willing ear. Buckden was a great favorite, and the following are the quotations:

Buckden	$670	$600	$870
Grey Planet	270	230	375
Piedmont	130	115	225
Jury	100	105	120
Total	$1,040	$1,100	$1,590

THE RACE.

The distance being a mile and a half they were started from the half-mile pole, and when the flag fell Buckden went off first, Jury second, Grey Planet third, and Piedmont fourth. As they came round the lower turn they were all up in a bunch, and a magnificent race took place as the three-quarter pole, where Buckden, Piedmont and Jury were on even terms, and Grey Planet two lengths behind. They came up the homestretch at a magnificent pace, all in a bunch, except Grey Planet, who was still waiting behind. Thus they went all the way round the turn to the quarter pole, where Planet had further behind, but on the backstretch he began to make his run, and closed upon the leaders. They passed the half-mile pole in the same order, and a more magnificent race was never witnessed, and the excitement was great. On the lower turn Planet went up to his competitors, and they turned into the homestretch on even terms. They rattled up the homestretch, the excitement culminating in a burst of admiration. Piedmont and Jury then gave way, and a beautiful struggle ensued between Grey Planet and Buckden, and they passed under the string together—a dead heat—Jury third, six lengths behind, Piedmont fourth. Time, 2:42¾.

TODAY'S RACING.

For to-morrow there are three races on the programme. The first is a mile dash for all ages, which has the following three starters: L. B. and W. R. Davis' ch. h. Fadladeen, by War Dance, out of Nora Creina; Hunter & Travers' b. c. Alarm, by Eclipse, out of imp. Maud, and A. Belmont's ch. f. Kingfisher, by Lexington, out of Eltham Lass. The second is a selling race for all ages, a mile and a half, in which are L. B. and W. R. Davis' b. h. Allie Hunt, J. H. Harbeck's ch. g. Cadence, Hunter & Travers' b. c. Buckden, Joseph Donahue's ch. h. Sandford, and John O'Donnell's gr. f. Mary Louise. The third race is a dash of two miles for all ages, in which there are Lochiel, Tubman, John Merryman, and Susan Ann. The pools to-night sold as follows:

MILE DASH.

Kingfisher	$400	$500
Alarm	225	300
Fadladeen	40	55

Longfellow Completely Broken Down—Description of the Accident—The Horse Game to the Last.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SARATOGA, July 16.—It will be many years before another such contest is witnessed again, but it is a mournful duty for us to record the breaking down of the grand Longfellow. The description of the accident is given below, and it will be seen from the facts that Leamington's son, though defeated, is crowned with laurels. Poor Longfellow in his stable this evening, presents a picture of misery. There is a complete circle cut from the centre of his hoof extending round the coronet ring to his heel. His middle tendon to-night is three times the natural size. It appears that he broke a shoe-plate on one of the hind legs at the half-mile pole, when he was lapping Bassett, and cut the fore foot with it, as above described. But notwithstanding the disaster, this noble horse ran to the end, and was only beaten by a length, in the fastest time on record by two and a half seconds. No doubt exists in the minds of experienced turfmen that he is completely broken down, and will never appear in public again. Uncle Harper is completely overcome, and walks about with sorrowful looks. It is to be regretted that the question of superiority has not been decided, for Longfellow, to-night, is as much, if not more, a hero than Bassett.

The Death-Rate in Buffalo—Gratifying Decrease.

From the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, July 13.

The Health Physician's report for the month of June shows a gratifying decrease in the number of victims from epidemic diseases. The deaths from "meningitis" are less than one-half of the number reported for the month of May. In this connection we are informed that one-half of the "spotted fever" cases are certified by coroners and undertakers who feel called upon to assign some cause of death. Formerly it was customary to dispose of all uncertain cases under the general head of "fits," but of late the irregular practitioners prefer the more professional and scientific "cerebro-spinal meningitis," and under that head they report the cause of death when they are in any doubt or uncertainty. It is fair to presume, from an examination of the certificates in the Health Physician's office, that there were not over ten fatal cases of "meningitis" in the city last month. The number of small-pox cases reported shows a marked decline in that loathsome epidemic. It could be made to disappear entirely if the authorities were promptly assisted and obeyed in observing the necessary precaution.

Deducting the deaths from small-pox, the death-rate for the month of June was but very little larger than the average for the past five years. The excess can be accounted for in the increase of population. It has been a season, moreover, when there has been an unusual mortality in all parts of the country. The statistics prove that Buffalo is, taking everything into consideration, the healthiest city in this country. It can be made to remain so by a proper care for the enforcement of sanitary laws.

BEFORE THE BARGAIN.

What a Tammany Magnate Thought of His Candidate Two Years Ago.

It is well known that A. Oakey Hall is now one of the most enthusiastic supporters of Horace Greeley—for he, like all the other Tammany leaders, sees plainly enough that in Greeley's election is the only hope of the restoration of Tammany.

Before Greeley seemed likely to be of use to Tammany, Hall's estimate of him was slightly different from what it is now. He, the Mayor, made a speech on the 4th of November, 1870, at the Riding-school, West Thirteenth-street, in which he reviewed Mr. Greeley's life and character. At that time, we repeat, Hall had very little idea that Greeley meant to become his friend, and consequently he was plain and outspoken. The following is the report of the Mayor's speech, reprinted from the Herald of Nov. 5. It will be found lively and curious reading, considering the efforts which Mr. GREELEY is making to restore the Tammany Ring to power, and considering also the fact that Mayor HALL is singing "Greeley" campaign songs about the City, and that the Tammany Ring generally are deeply interested in securing GREELEY's election as President:

GREELEY's running is a farce. Have you ever seen MORTON'S farce of "Box and Cox?" In that farce Box was a journeyman printer, like GREELEY. The upshot of the farce is that Cox gets the journeyman printer into a box, just as next election day our friend S. S. (initials which in law papers stand for "truly") will get GREELEY in a tight place in the ballot-box. The Republican papers from which I have quoted do not, however, take the strongest ground. GREELEY is really ineligible to a seat in Congress, for the same reason that in law makes men ineligible for purposes of trust, or to make contracts, and to bear witness. Most everybody has been making mistakes about him. Some have thought him malicious, and cunning and treacherous by design. But he is simply an irresponsible agent. I will pass by the fact that he is honorably ineligible to go to Congress from this district, because he resides either at Chappaqua, in POTTER's district, or with a widow woman at No. 115 West Forty-third-street, in WOOD's district, or at the Westmoreland Hotel, in BROOKS' district—the three abodes he variously has; and by the fact that he was not, as I have found from personal inquiry, registered in any of the City districts; but confine myself to the point that he is an irresponsible agent, as the best reason why people should vote against him. What are the characteristics, in medicine and in law, of an irresponsible man?

He is feeble of purpose, tremulous in judgment, unstable and inconsistent in thought and deed, doing motiveless things, telling motiveless falsehoods, friendly with a man one moment and unfriendly the next, eccentric in dress, eccentric in eating and drinking, devoured by the worm self-consciousness, full of unaccountable idiosyncracies and prejudices, and awkward affectations; uncertain of religious opinions, he is one day prayerful and the next wildly blasphemous; one moment he is calm, the next furious. Psychologists differ as to whether or no mental disease is occasioned by a condition of the body. Some believe it is, and some do not. The old maxim was, "Mens sana in corpore sano." We will not discuss the philosophy. But there is abundant evidence that GREELEY's brain has been physiologically disordered since his birth. Mr. PARTON, his biographer, says that his parturition was difficult; that he was born black in the face, with effusion of blood on the brain, and that for many days it was doubtful that he would live. In his own frantic Recollections of a Busybody's Life he mentions how terribly sick he was in childhood, and how his mother watched him with tenderer care because he was not as other children were. He also says, in his Busy Life, he could never stand at a window and look at the rain without becoming horribly sick. There is here an evident symptom of hydrophobia. The mad man, like a mad dog, fears the water. This delicate state of the brain was in nowise improved by the terrible pounding on the head given him by the cane of the cowardly Congressman RUST, of Arkansas, at the Capitol. He says in his frantic Recollections that he used to fall asleep at school and begin to spell words. He is at times affected with brain fever. In his famous letter to Gov. SEWARD he said: "I must get away to Europe for awhile and cool my fevered brain." This is the frantic expression of a madman driven to additional despair by crazy ambition. All his actions, from birth to his present threescore years, attest lesion of the brain. You can explain his vagaries upon no other principle. Read in his frantic Recollections what inexplicable things he has done in the way of shifting from one point to another, and from one place to another. How often do we read in the newspapers of the mysterious disappearance of insane people into out-of-the-way places. He himself narrates how he used suddenly to leave his printing-office and on foot cross whole New-England States and even New-York. This was a madman's usual restless cuitivation of the understanding by pedestrianism. Yet, with all his reckless disregard of constancy in life, he always keeps on his desk before him in his office, PARTON's Life of Greeley. He has always affected oddity in dress. Some mad persons desire to go naked. Ophelia twisted straw about her head. Barnaby Rudge carried a raven on his shoulder and attracted universal observation by the strangeness of his dress, as DICKENS tells us. There is a young woman in Blackwell's Island Lunatic Asylum very much like GREELEY in this respect. One day she dresses in order, and the next in disorder, but equally admiring the kempt and the unkempt.

GREELEY has all the madman's feebleness of purpose. He began his career by engaging in a newspaper devoted to lottery tickets. Then he went into the Log Cabin and New-Yorker, and failed until he met with the money and strong, sane purpose of MCELRATH, and of editorial aids like the late RAYMOND and Mr. DANA. As editor of the New-Yorker he cultivated slave-holders to increase his Southern circulation. He worshiped the slave-holder CLAY with the same feebleness of purpose with which he afterwards worshipped LINCOLN. Had CLAY not died when he did there is no doubt that he would have deserted him also in his old age. He says in his "Frantic Recollections" that he opposed Mr. LINCOLN for re-election. He had in the Tribune opposed LINCOLN for United States Senator when the latter ran against DOUGLAS, and had favored the latter. He informs us in his "Frantic Recollections" that he took a hatred to tobacco because he had to fill his mother's pipe at night; and he took a dislike for liquor because a man he disliked when young used to drink whisky. Madmen are consistent, however, to some monomania. GREELEY's monomania is always protection. He has almost a free trade in the vagaries of this heresy. He has also been a Fourierite and a free lover at various times. On the eve of war he preached secession. All throughout the war he preached peace as much as he dared. In peace he was for war; in war for peace. He went bail for JEFF. DAVIS, the only just charity he ever did. Yet all the while he was insisting upon being worshiped by his adherents as a consistent opponent of the rebellion. In our darkest days, he said that if LEE watered his horses in the Delaware, we ought to give up the fight. He was the author of the famous 'On to Richmond' cry, which precipitated disaster. Yet what an insane mission was that mission he undertook to Canada, to meet GEORGE SANDERS and Colorado JEWETT; and to this day he labors under the delusion, and his friends know it, that it was done in the interest and at the instance of Mr. LINCOLN—a delusion which Mr. RAYMOND, in his Life of Lincoln has abundantly refuted. Motiveless ingratitude to friends is a symptom of a madman. The greatest benefactors GREELEY ever had in his life were THURLOW WEED and WILLIAM H. SEWARD, who rescued him from absolute beggary, and THOMAS MCELRATH, whose energy built up the Tribune, and CHARLES A. DANA, whose wonderful paragraphs gave it world-wide renown. Yet he has systematically turned on these, cursed them like a trooper in conversation, maligned them in his paper, and slandered them in his recent book. This cursing of GREELEY's is another act of a madman. He will sometimes sit in his editorial sanctum, quiet and calm, reading a newspaper; something will suddenly excite him, and he will jump up swearing, and call upon the nearest man to kick him down stairs. Was there ever a more insane act than that he did in the Constitutional Convention, when, all of a sudden, he jumped up, seized his papers, damned the Convention and left, never to come back to it, and only manifested sanity by drawing his full pay and complement of stationery and books. He affects to believe in no hell, and yet sends people to it by objurgation a hundred times a day. He would be said to insult a polished clergyman every Sunday by conversing his pew into a sleeping apartment, were he not crazy. Not to listen to the polished and eloquent CHAPIN can be excused only upon the plea of insanity.

He writes insane maunderings about farming. He seriously recommends people to plant acorns in order to grow up oaks (!) and says it is the most profitable crop, and that the land will yield least! But the letters of his friend MORTIMER, who, as DONALD G. MITCHELL, is an excellent farmer, thought GREELEY sufficiently in earnest to write comments against the idea. He has insanely surrounded his farm with his eccentricities. His craving for notoriety is a symptom of a madman. I myself saw him in 1860, in Chicago, while in company with two other gentlemen, who also laughed at him, go behind the door of the barber's shop in the hotel and carefully adjust his trousers in the inside of his boots. He must periodically run for some office every Autumn, and it don't much matter what it is. The last time he ran for Congress it was in a lower district. He once had some idea of going to Virginia to run for United States Senator. All these erratic movements show insanity. People said he once went to Europe because he could not be Governor. There was no necessity for him to go. All people wondered why he did go. While in Paris he attracted so much notice as a member of our Crystal Palace Association that he got himself arrested and shut up. It is the act of a madman to boast of having been a jail-bird in his "Frantic Recollections." Read how proud he is of it.

He was three months in Congress, and his acts there can only be charitably explained on the hypothesis of insanity. His insanity sometimes breaks out in the form of spasmodic letters in his own newspaper, signed by his name or initials. He was morally convicted of perjury in the MCFARLAND case. Mad men are under the delusion that they tell the truth when they do not, and are therefore not to be blamed for it.

OCEANICA.

Wrecks on the Australian Coast—Mail Contracts—Scarcity of Water—Precedence of Religious Dignitaries Ignored.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16.—The steam-ship Mohongo from Honolulu, arrived here today with dates to July 3 from that place, and to June 6, from Australia. Capt. Edward Wakeman, of the Mohongo, was stricken with paralysis on the trip from Honolulu. The following is a summary of the news by the Mohongo:

NEW SOUTH WALES.

The members of the present Ministry have been re-elected, and expect to meet Parliament with a working majority. They have partially arranged the Border Customs Treaty. It only requires the legislative sanction to become law. The Executive Council have decided to enforce the extreme penalty of the law on NICOLS and LESTER. The latter made a full confession. The steamer Clarence, from Sydney for Grafton, was totally lost June 2. The passengers and crew were saved. The wreck was sold for a mere trifle. The bark Mary & Edith, from Puget Sound, for Australia, laden with lumber, was wrecked near Noumea. A French resident purchased the wreck and got the vessel off. The ship Young Australia was lost a few hours after leaving Brisbane, for London, with a cargo of 1,400 bales wool and other produce. The ship and cargo were fully insured. The coal export trade is increasing. A scarcity of tonnage just now prevents the execution of all the orders. A number of vessels are at Sydney loading for California.

VICTORIA.

A scarcity of water is causing great losses to the squatters. The next wool season is expected to be earlier than last, and the clip somewhat lighter. Thirty thousand cases of preserved meats were shipped for Europe last month.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

The wet season delays the resumption of the construction of the overland telegraph line. The Government has purchased a number of horses, and will open a dispatch express. Only 259 miles of the line remain to be completed, which will probably be done early in August.

Parliament has again passed a resolution ignoring the English Government's order respecting the precedence of religious dignitaries.

THE SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

Commander Meade, of the United States steamer Narragansett, formally assumed the protectionate of Tutuila (Tutuilla I) Island, where a private company has been formed to work the plantations. The promoters of the enterprise allege that they have received promises of influential duties on products shipped to the United States. Gordon, a missionary to Erromanga, has been murdered by the natives. The Fiji Islands are undergoing incipient revolution. The Government is powerless against it.

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

The Legislature has been in session eight weeks. The Government has intimated to the honorable body that it must finish its business in two weeks more, or the members will be sent home. There have been appropriated $116,000 for interests of navigation; $12,000 for the support of a Government paper—the Gazette—and several other large sums for different objects. The public debt will be quite large for this country, greater, we fear, than can be supported, it being not far from half a million dollars. An attachment was issued by the Supreme Court, at the instance of the Attorney-General, against the steamer Nebraska, in consequence of the introduction of the small-pox on her arrival from San Francisco in May last. H. Hackeneed & Co., agents for the Webb line, gave the necessary bonds to enable the vessel to proceed on her voyage.

The Legislature adjourned over the 4th of July in honor of the day.

Capt. Mammen and Fourth Officer Rose, of the whaling bark Onward, from Sydney, were murdered on April 20, by the natives of Gowen's Island, Solomon's Group. Several of the crew were wounded.

THE GENEVA BOARD.

Meeting Yesterday—Exchanging Printed Documents—A Short Session.

GENEVA, July 16.—The Board of Arbitration met today. A large quantity of printed matter was submitted to the Board and exchanged by the agents of Great Britain and the United States. No other business was done, the Court adjourning after a session of less than fairty minutes' duration. There is no reason to anticipate further delay in the proceedings, nor is any long controversy expected.

GREAT BRITAIN.

The American Squadron—Protest of English Catholics Against Italy's Coorse to the Pope—Governor-General of India.

LONDON, July 17—5 A. M.—Admiral Alden, United States Navy, who has been visiting this city, yesterday rejoined his fleet at Spithead. The fleet will sail for Antwerp and Hamburg.

An influential meeting of Roman Catholics was held in this city last night, the Duke of Norfolk presiding. Resolves were adopted protesting against the action of the Italian Government toward the Papal authorities and condemning the recent law passed by the German Parliament proscribing the Jesuits.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Yesterday, Tuesday, July 16, the Exchange was visited by several of the most noted speculators in New-York real estate, among the number being Mr. Thomas Murphy and others of equal note. Upon inquiry it transpired that the speculators have in many instances left orders with their brokers to buy up during the period of inactivity all the bargains that they can secure, lots on the Boulevard having the first preference, those fronting on the Riverside Park and on the avenues and streets in the immediate vicinity thereof ranking next, after those lots fronting on the Eighth-avenue, have the preference. That a general movement in west-side property is anticipated, there is no doubt; and it is supposed by the "knowing ones" that by next September the market will be in a very active condition, and they are purchasing now in expectation of a rise.

William Kennedy sold at the Exchange, by order of Matthew T. Brennan, Esq., Sheriff, the lease of the two lots and buildings known as Nos. 156 and 158 East Twenty-third-street, south side, between Lexington and Third avenues, the same having eight years to run, at an annual ground rent of $3,300 per year, to John W. Weed, for $250.

James M. Miller adjourned the Supreme Court sale of the eight lots situated on the west side of Fourth-avenue, between Sixty-third and Sixty-fourth streets, 75 by 200.10, to Tuesday, Aug. 6, by order of Charles A. Jackson, Esq., referee.

John S. Pierce, real estate broker, of No. 106 Broadway, corner Pine-street, has recently sold a large piece of property in West Morrisania, corner Walton-avenue and Juliet-street, consisting of about thirty city lots, with the buildings, for $25,625.

The auction sales noted for today, Wednesday, July 17, are not of a very important character. They are only two in number, and the particulars are as follows:

By E. H. Ludlow & Co., at the Exchange, by order of the Supreme Court, Alfred T. Ackert, Esq., referee, the house and lot on the east side of Ridge-street, 133.4½ feet north of Rivington-street; lot 20 4¼ by 50.1½.

Also, under the direction of the same referee, the lot of land on the south side of One Hundredth-street, 375 feet west of Eighth-avenue, 25 by 100.11.

(ORGANIZED AUG. 1, 1870.)

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL STOCK, $1,000,000

The whole amount of the authorized Capital Stock of this Company not having been issued, the balance thereof will be issued to subscribers at par, payments for same to be made in four installments of 25 per cent. each, viz.:

25 PER CENT. JULY 15, 1872.
25 PER CENT. AUG. 1, 1872.
25 PER CENT. SEPT. 1, 1872.
25 PER CENT. OCT. 1, 1872.

The Subscription Books now open at the office of the undersigned will be closed as soon as the new stock is fully subscribed. All installments due payable with interest at time of subscription.

The total amount of stock issued at this time is $414,760, and on this basis the Company shows a present surplus of $136,280 97, and is now doing a flourishing business. One thousand men are constantly employed in their extensive works, and they now have on hand $1,950,000 of work for various railroads in the United States, among which may be mentioned the

CHICAGO, R. I. & PACIFIC,
CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN,
MICHIGAN CENTRAL,
MISSOURI PACIFIC,

and the Company is now offered work to the amount of over $6,000,000, including some of the largest bridges ever built in this country; to accept of which, and further business necessitates a larger working capital, as immense amounts of material have to be kept constantly on hand, and the Company are frequently obliged to receive, in part payment for their work, railroad and other bonds, which are perfectly good securities, but not always immediately marketable.

The career of the American Bridge Company, though brief, has already fully demonstrated the profitableness of the enterprise. The Company has constructed since its organization, and up to the 31st of December, 1871, a total of 33,137 feet of bridges, 18 turning tables, and 16 iron roofs, and pneumatic and screw pile substructure, costing $3,400,000, and have facilities for the construction of pneumatic piles unsurpassed by any Company in the country, and a capacity for the construction of at least 150 feet of bridges for every working day in the year.

The Iron Railroad and Highway Bridge at Leavenworth, of three spans of 340 feet each, and the Union Pacific Bridge across the Missouri River, of eleven spans of 250 feet each, were constructed by this Company.

The net profit arising from this business, as shown by the books of the Company up to the 31st of March, 1872, was the sum of $373.892 14, or at the rate of $524,089 28 per annum, being over 50 per cent. upon the capital stock then outstanding. With the proposed new structures, machinery, &c., the Company will have much greater capacity, and the proceeds of the increased business of stock will enable them to buy material for cash, thereby making a saving of from $50,000 to $75,000 per year.

The Company can undoubtedly, on above basis, make dividends of from 30 to 35 per cent. per annum on the full amount of capital, $1,000,000, with a fair prospect of considerable increase.

The undersigned are prepared to give to those inquiring the fullest details and entire satisfaction regarding the reliability of the Company's statements, and the unquestioned integrity and ability of its officers.

MIDLAND FIRST MORTGAGE
7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds,
ISSUED BY THE MONTCLAIR RAILWAY CO.
AND
GUARANTEED BY NEW-YORK MIDLAND.

The MONTCLAIR is the DIRECT and SHORT LINE OF THE MIDLAND through New-Jersey. Its bonds are issued on the basis of half cost. They are GUARANTEED. It is a home road, running DIRECT FROM THE CITY OF NEW-YORK, assured of a large business and a fine future. THIS BOND OFFERS AN ADVANTAGE OVER ALL THE OTHER MIDLAND FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS, IN THAT, WITH EQUAL SECURITY, IT IS LESS IN PRICE.

We commend it to investors.

FIRST MORTGAGE
SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS
OF THE
CAYUGA LAKE RAILROAD,
ISSUED FOR $20,000 PER MILE,
STATE OF NEW-YORK

This road has now been in process of construction during the past year, and will be finished during the coming Autumn; iron is purchased and now being laid over one-third of the whole distance from Aurora to Cayuga Bridge, where it crosses the New-York Central. At Ithaca, the Southern terminus of the road, it connects with the Ithaca and Athens Road, FINISHED, and daily delivering large quantities of COAL at that point. The Susquehanna Division of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad terminates also at Ithaca, where it is now accumulating an immense quantity of its COALS, awaiting the completion of this road for transportation. Thus it will be seen that this road will always have a large coal traffic from these two sources. Besides this, the local business, traversing as it does the finest agricultural district of this State, will be very large. We are offering a limited amount of the bonds at 90 and accrued interest in currency, and do not hesitate to recommend them to the public as a first-class investment.

THE GREAT
MIDLAND RAILROAD
Now Nearly Completed.

The remainder of the FIRST MORTGAGE SEVEN PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, limited to $20,000 TO THE MILE on finished Road, offered, to close out the loan, at par and interest.

The New-Jersey Division of the Road is finished, and trains are now running into Jersey City. From Oswego eastward the road is in successful operation for a long distance. A short gap in the construction of the New-York Division alone prevents running through from New-York to Oswego. Work is progressing on this unfinished section with the utmost energy, and we hope soon to announce the completion of the entire road of this great Trunk Line from New-York to Oswego.

These Bonds, in our judgment, possess in a marked degree the elements of

LEGAL NOTICES.

NEW-YORK SUPREME COURT.—IN the matter of the ASTOR FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—ALBERT C. BAGE against THE ASTOR FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—In pursuance of an order of this Court, made and entered in the above-entitled action and proceeding, bearing date the 20th day of March, A. D. 1872, notice is hereby given to all creditors of the Astor Fire Insurance Company, the above-named corporation, that they are required to exhibit their claims to me, the undersigned, the referee named in said order, at my office at No. 152 Broadway, in the City of New-York, on or before the 23d day of September, 1872, and become parties to the above entitled suit; and that in default of such creditors exhibiting their claims as aforesaid they will be precluded from all benefit of the judgment or decree which shall be made in such suit, and from any distribution of the assets of said Company which may be made under such judgment or decree.
—Dated New-York, March 26, 1872.
HENRY WILDER ALLEN, Referee.

At a Special Term of the Supreme Court of the State of New-York held at the Chambers thereof in the County Court-house in the City of New-York, on the 20th day of March, 1872.—Present Hon. Albert Cardozo, Justice.—In the matter of the Astor Fire Insurance Company.—Albert C. Bage against the Astor Fire Insurance Company.—On reading and filing the foregoing petition of Charles H. Farnam, Receiver of the above-named corporation, after hearing Richard C. Fellows, of counsel for said receiver: It is ordered that the said receiver have leave, and he is hereby authorized and directed to pay a dividend of forty per centum upon the debts of the above-named corporation which have been ascertained, to those persons who have exhibited their claims as creditors of said Company as prescribed in and by section 79, article 3, chapter 8, title 4, part 3 of the Revised Statutes. It is further ordered that a notice be published in the manner hereinafter directed requiring all the creditors of the said Company to exhibit their claims and become parties to the above entitled suit within six months from the first publication of this order, and in default thereof that they be precluded from all benefit of the judgment or decree which shall be made in such suit and from any distribution of the assets of said Company which may be made under such judgment or decree. And it is further ordered, that such notice and a copy of this order be published once a week for six months in the New-York Times, and Commercial Advertiser, newspapers published in the City of New-York. And it is further ordered, that Henry W. Allen, Esq., a counsellor of this Court, be appointed a referee for the purposes of this order; that such publication be made under his direction, and all such claims be exhibited to the said referee; that said referee do hear and determine all such claims as may be contested, and that he report to this Court from time to time upon all or any matters referred to him, and said receiver be at liberty to apply to this Court for such further directions as from time to time may be proper. And it is further ordered, that said receiver make further application of the funds remaining in his hands after the payment of said dividend of forty per centum by paying therewith a further dividend to creditors of the said Company at the time and in the manner provided by law.—Indorsed, filed March 21, 1872.
A copy.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE SUPREME Court, held at the Court-house in the City of Brooklyn, on the 7th day of March, 1872. present Hon. Jasper W. Gilbert, Justice. ROBERT P. GETTY vs. YONKERS AND NEW-YORK FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.—On reading and filing the petition of Richard L. Franklin, receiver in the above-entitled action, and it appearing to this Court to be necessary for and proper that the prayer thereof be granted, now, on motion of William P. Dixon, attorney for said receiver, it is hereby ordered and decreed that the said receiver have leave, and he is hereby authorized and directed to pay a dividend of forty (40) cents on the dollar of the debts of the said Yonkers and New-York Insurance Company, which have been ascertained and adjusted, to those persons who have exhibited their claims as creditors of said Company, as prescribed in and by section 79, article 3, chapter 8, title 4, part 3 of the Revised Statutes. And it is further ordered and decreed that a notice be published in the manner hereinafter directed, requiring all the creditors of the said Yonkers and New-York Insurance Company to exhibit their claims, and become parties to the above-entitled suit, within six months from the first publication of this order. And in default thereof that they be precluded from all benefit of the judgment and decree which shall be made therein, and from any distribution which shall be made under said judgment or decree. And it is further ordered that said notice and a copy of this order be published once a week for six months in the New-York Times and Commercial Advertiser, newspapers published in the City of New-York. And it is further ordered that Charles H. Farnam, a counselor of this Court, be, and hereby is, appointed referee for the purposes of this order. That such publication be made under this direction, and all such claims be exhibited to the said referee. PROPOSALS.

WROUGHT AND CAST-IRON WORK.

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Superintendent until 12 M., July 29, 1872, for furnishing, delivering, fitting, and putting in place the wrought and cast-iron work as exhibited by the drawings, described in the specifications and called for in the schedules, consisting of the ornamental iron-work to roofs, the chimney stalks and ventilation shafts, stairs from basement to first floor; two staircases from first to second floor; two staircases from second to attic floor; two flights of steps on attic floor; stair from attic floor to roof; door and window frames, finishings, &c.; ceiling of banking-room, and the Post-office screen, &c.
Copies of the drawings, specifications and schedule may be had on application at this office.
All scaffolding required by the contractors to put the work in place will be furnished by the Government free of charge, but will be erected by the contractors.
Proposals will be made by the piece, lineal foot, or weight, for the various items of work, as called for in the schedule. The work will not be subdivided among different bidders, but will be considered in the aggregate.
Payments will be made monthly, deducting ten per centum until the final completion of the contract.
All bids must be accompanied by a penal bond, in the sum of fifty thousand dollars, ($50,000,) that the bidder will accept and perform the contract if awarded him, the sufficiency of the security to be certified by the United States Judge, the Clerk of the United States Court, or the District Attorney of the district wherein he resides.
The Department reserves the right to reject any or all bids, if it be deemed for the interest of the Government to do so; and any bid that is not made on the printed form, copy of which can be obtained in this office, and does not conform in every respect to the requirements of this advertisement, will not be considered; neither will any proposals be received from parties who are not themselves engaged in the manufacture or wrought or cast-iron work, and who have not the necessary facilities for getting out the work.
Proposals will be indorsed "Bids for Iron-work," and addressed to BRIDLEY J. F. BRYANT, Superintendent.

PROPOSALS FOR DEAD LETTER ENVELOPES.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C., June 21, 1872.
Sealed proposals will be received at this Department until July 23, 1872, at 12 o'clock M., for furnishing, during a period of two years, commencing on the 10th day of August, 1872, envelopes to be used for returning dead letters to writers.
The envelopes must be hand-gummed, and equal in quality of paper and manufacture to the sample selected by the Department, and have such printing upon them as the Postmaster-General may direct. They must be delivered in such quantities and at such times as may be required at the Post-office Department in Washington, D. C., in good order, packed in strong pasteboard boxes, ready for use, free of cost, for package and transportation, at the rate of about 150,000 per month, the annual supply being estimated at 2,000,000 (more or less.)
Specimens of the envelopes for which proposals are invited, and blank forms for proposals, may be had on application to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General.
No proposal will be considered unless accompanied by a sufficient and satisfactory guarantee; and the Postmaster-General reserves the right to reject any and all bids, if in his judgment the interests of the Government require it.
Bonds, with approved and sufficient sureties, in the sum of $24,000, will be required for the faithful performance of the contract, according to the provisions of the seventeenth section of the act of Congress, approved the 28th of August, 1842, and payment under said contract will be made quarterly after a proper adjustment of accounts.
The Postmaster-General reserves to himself the right to annul the contract if in his judgment there shall be a failure to perform faithfully any of its stipulations, or in case of willful attempt to impose upon the Department envelopes inferior to sample.
Under the law no transfer of this contract can be made.
Bids should be securely enveloped and sealed, marked "Proposals for Dead Letter Envelopes," and addressed to the Third Assistant Postmaster-General, Post-office Department, Washington, D. C.
JNO. A. J. CRESWELL,
Postmaster-General.

UNITED STATES ARMY BUILDING,
OFFICE OF COMMISSARY OF SUBSISTENCE,
NEW-YORK, July 10, 1872.
SEALED PROPOSALS, IN DUPLICATE, will be received at this office until 12 o'clock M., Aug. 10, 1872, for furnishing for the United States Army one hundred thousand pounds of tobacco.
The proposals will state accurately in detail the quality and kind of tobacco, its history, if any, as to its keeping qualities in the climates and in transportation; of what leaf, as to stock, year and curing the wrapper and filler is made; whether the binder is used; what casing is used, and when, where and how to be manufactured; and the kind of packing put up for shipment, and whether machine or hand made.
The tobacco to be made in plugs, weighing full one-half pound each, and to equal the best grade of army or navy tobacco now in use, lower qualities than the sample to be seen at the office of the Depot Commissary, New-York City.
The tobacco to be packed in boxes, (caddies,) to contain twenty-five pounds, and the weight of the boxes to be packed in cases, (eight to a case,) head-lined.
Samples (five cases packed as above required) of the tobacco proposed to be furnished must accompany the proposals and be referred to therein. No conditional proposition will be considered, and no sample will be entertained. The samples so furnished will be paid for at fair market rates, if deemed of sufficiently good quality for sales to troops, if the proposer so desires.
An officer of the army and an expert will be required to examine and inspect the tobacco in the leaf, in course of manufacture, and when shipped.
The proposals must be in duplicate, indorsed on outside, and accompanied by a copy of this advertisement, will be received until noon of Aug. 10, 1872, and will be opened in ten minutes thereafter, in presence of such bidders as may wish to be present.
The materials is easily removed. There is no rock; the channel is not to exceed about eight feet in depth at mean low water; the locality is sheltered.
Specifications, forms of proposal, and any desired information to be had on application at this office. The right to reject any bid is reserved.

Now that the arrangements for the third and fourth of our series of picnics are completed, we are paying proper attention to the relief of sick children in their homes. The system organized by Mr. George Calder in the Eleventh and Thirteenth Wards is now in admirable working order. His system will be followed as closely as possible in other portions of the City, whenever we find the proper class of persons to undertake it. We purchased on Monday 250 palm-leaf fans for Mr. Calder, and his corps of visitors are distributing them wherever needed. The difficulty of obtaining ice has been overcome, so that hereafter small quantities will be dealt out to those who need it. The supplies of groceries and medicines afford great relief to the sick, and the result is a gratifying one. We have arranged with the missionaries laboring in the Five Points to report to us all cases where sick or suffering children are found in the crowded tenements of that wretched neighborhood. Accounts will be opened with grocers for small quantities of rice, milk, oat-meal or ice to be given the sick. As in Mr. Calder's district, these grocers' bills will be paid by the Treasurer of the fund in person, so that there can be no waste or reckless expenditure. Full reports of this part of the work of relief will be given from day to day.

We have received a note dated Scarborough, N. Y., stating that the sum of $5 was sent to this office July 9, for the Children's Fund. No such sum reached our hands, and this is the first case of the kind during the time we have received and acknowledged $5,771 07.

VISITING THE SICK POOR.

Condition of Delicate Children in Various Wards of the City—The Efforts to Relieve the Sufferings of the Little Ones.

The TIMES' mission labors for the sick children of this City are extending. The Fifth and Eighth Wards are to be divided into about thirty districts, each of which will be under the charge of a separate visitor, who will report to a chief missionary of known reputation. A physician has been engaged, and will at once enter upon the work of relieving the suffering little ones. These Wards present a vast field for the labors of missionaries, and we expect good work to be done before the week is ended, the particulars of which will be duly reported in the TIMES.

The writer yesterday accompanied the missionaries through the Tenth, Eleventh and Fourteenth Wards, where the following sad cases were found:

At No. 153 Forsyth-street, in a rear frame house, was found a boy named George Haacke, who has been afflicted with a bone disease in the left leg. The heat of the Summer had been very trying upon the boy, and the father was unable to give the afflicted one that medical care and attention the boy required. The case was reported to Dr. Lang, who promptly visited the boy, and ascertained that the disease had been greatly intensified by the impure atmosphere which the child breathed daily.

At No. 360 Third-street was found Mrs. O'Brien, whose child was sick with cholera infantum. The mother was almost in a destitute condition, and the double tenement-house in which she lived was far too small for the large number of families residing therein. This case was attended to by Dr. Crampton.

In the back garret room of No. 819 Fifth-street, an old frame house near the river, they found an aged couple named Kinlan, who had passed beyond the allotted term of threescore years and ten, and who earned a precarious living by stripping tobacco. The heat had prostrated Christopher Kinlan, the husband, and the aged wife had left her tobacco-stripping to attend to the wants of the only relative and friend she had in the world. This brought both to a state of destitution, so that death would have soon relieved them of all their troubles. The case was reported to Dr. Crampton, who at once attended to the patient, and yesterday the old couple were again at work.

The Fourteenth Ward presented a large number of distressing cases, from which we take the more important. A sick child at No. 257 Elizabeth-street, a house in which resided no less than fourteen families, was reported as worthy of attention. To find the patient it was necessary to climb a very narrow flight of dark stairs, at the head of which were two very small rooms occupied by as many widows, who paid $10 per month rent for these miserable apartments. Here Mary Daily, aged two years, was found very sick. Her father was drowned less than a year ago, and her mother was left helpless with four little ones. One of the children is now at St. Barnabas School; another is at work earning $2 per week; the third is the little child Mary above alluded to, and the fourth, who was a poor deformed girl, named Maggie, died last week for the want of that medical attention now so fortunately supplied to her little sister.

The second widow, named Jane Hanna, on Saturday last lost a little grandson, named Arthur Shultz, aged two months, who was taken sick with cholera infantum on Friday, and died in less than twenty-four hours for want of medical aid. The mother of the child, for want of other employment, had hired herself out as a wet nurse to maintain the life of an infant belonging to some wealthy person. She was absent when her child died, and her grief on returning home was too poignant to be described. Thus in this one house two children had died in less than a week for want of the needful assistance which the TIMES, through the generosity of its readers, is now enabled to supply to the poor. Dr. Lang at once attended to the case of Mary Daily, whose life it is hoped will be spared to her widowed mother.

At No. 273 Mulberry-street was found Frank Sampson, a little boy whose foot was crushed by a car about seven weeks ago. The father earns a precarious living as a fur-sewer, and the mother assists him in maintaining the four children—one ten weeks old—by taking in washing. His family resides in three rooms, if such they can be called, for which they pay $13 per month. Frank lay on an apology for a sofa, asleep, in the room where the washing was generating an unhealthy steam, his slumbers being greatly disturbed by the innumerable flies with which the place abounded. In this house lived eight families, the only ventilation to their apartments being through narrow passages which connected the stairways with the living rooms. This case is under the charge of Dr. Lang.

The attention of the missionary was called to the case of Lizzie Koehler, aged thirteen years, who was deformed by a fall when but four years of age, an injury to the spine depriving her of the power of walking alone, and who was sick, yesterday, at No. 209 Elm-street. Her mother was, about four years ago, left a widow, and had worked since then at a sewing-machine to maintain her children. The home exhibited traces of former domestic comfort. Having to pay $10 per month for the rent of two rooms, when Lizzie was taken sick she was unable to pay for a doctor, and some fear was entertained that the crippled child would not get over the illness engendered by the heat. Dr. Crampton was informed, and promptly attended the case.

Down in a basement at No. 32 Spring-street was found the family of Henry F. Kuhn, who tries to earn an honest livelihood by mending chairs and repairing furniture. With his three children, and $15 per month to pay for rent, his task is somewhat a hard one, especially as one of his children, Emma, aged five years, is afflicted with a spinal disease caused by a fall when very young. The heat had affected the crippled child, and Dr. Crampton being informed of the facts, prompt assistance was rendered.

The writer also revisited several of the houses alluded to in yesterday's report of the missionary visitations, and found that the physicians had been prompt in their attendance, many of the little ones having already received great relief. The thanks of the parents was expressed in so many ways that to repeat them all would require as much space as has been already given to this article. One expression may be stated as an example. When old Mr. Kinlan found he was able to again go to his tobacco-stripping, and learned that it was through the generosity of the TIMES' readers he had been supplied with a doctor, he exclaimed: "The whole power of the City of New-York ought to pray for the preservation of every man like this, and keep them always in good health." This may be a simple way of expressing gratitude; but is deep and sincere. It is only a pity that some of the contributors are not enabled to witness the tearful gratitude of the mothers whose little ones have been benefited by the efforts thus made to relieve them.

Bible Society Work in New-Jersey.

The annual returns show that the Bible Societies of the State of New-Jersey, of which there are thirty, twenty-one being county associations, are all well sustained and engaged in earnest work. The anniversaries continue to be occasions of marked popular interest. By paid and volunteer visitors, and by a system of drafts on the local depositories, distributions are continued among the various classes of the population, including public-houses and institutions, benevolent, reformatory and criminal. The supply has embraced 1,317 destitute families out of 21,824 visited, and 327 missionary and other Sunday-schools. The circulation has reached 14,000 volumes. The net receipts, not including freight, depository and colportage expenses, have been $25,154 50. Of this sum about $1,772 came from the sale of Bibles, and $22,882 from donations. The sales have been somewhat less than usual, and the legacies, which the year before were very large, were quite small, while the amount from collections and donations shows an advance of some $3,000, or about fifteen per cent. over the previous year.

Confirmation of Assessments—Meeting of the Board of Revision.

The Controller has called a meeting of the Board of Revision and Correction of Assessments for Friday, the 19th inst., to take action upon the assessment lists, which have been suspended until the legality of the contracts under which the works were performed could be settled, and which the Commissioners on contracts of this character, appointed by the last Legislature for such examination, shall have certified to as being free from fraud.

The action of the Board of Revision and Correction of Assessments upon many of these completed works has long been desired by the owners of property affected by them, and their confirmation will permit the assessments to be legally collected.

The Emigration Commission.

The Emigration Commissioners met yesterday at Castle Garden. Commissioners O'Gorman, (President,) Hart, Lynch, Wallach, Kaufmann, Nicholson and Mayor Hall were present.

Geo. J. Forrest was appointed Commissioner of Emigration, in place of Wm. R. Barr. Dr. Healy was appointed House Physician at Castle Garden, in place of Dr. Hallock, who resigned.

The supply of coal was ordered to be purchased by the Superintendent from the lowest bidder.

A special committee reported in favor of memorializing the authorities of the German Empire to require a physician to be carried on any vessel leaving port with more than one hundred steerage passengers.

The Treasurer presented his annual report, and the Board then adjourned.

Prostrated by the Heat.

The following persons were prostrated by the heat yesterday in this City:

Edward McCusker, aged fifty, of No. 91 Cherry-street, at the corner of the New Bowery and New Chambers-street. Taken to the Park Hospital.

John Quinn, aged thirty-five, no home, was found in West-street, suffering from the heat, and sent to Bellevue Hospital.

Jennie Milward, aged twenty-eight, of No. 2 Milward-place, was prostrated in Delancey-street and taken to her home.

Frank Johnson, aged thirty, of No. 280 Front-street, was overcome by the heat at Pier No. 20 North River, and sent to Park Hospital.

Mary Reagy, aged seventy-six, no home, prostrated in Broadway, near Waverley-place, and taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Elizabeth Watson, aged seventy-five, no home, was prostrated by the heat, and sent to Bellevue Hospital.

THE TAMMANY THIEVES.

Argument in Appeal from Judge Hogeboom's Decision—Hampered Disposition of the Thieves' Lawyers to Talk Against Time—Absurd Pretensions of Connolly's Counsel—Mr. O'Conor's Argument.

ALBANY, July 16.—Pursuant to the proclamation of the Governor, the Supreme Court met in extraordinary General Term, Judges Miller, Potter and Parker presiding, at the Capitol to-day, to hear the arguments in the appeal against the decision of Judge Hogeboom, overruling the demurrer in the case of the People of the State of New-York vs. Wm. M. Tweed and others. The following counsel appeared for the defendant: David Dudley Field, Edwin W. Stoughton, William Fullerton, John E. Burrill, John H. Reynolds, W. O. Bartlett, John Graham and Elihu Root. The following counsel appeared for the people: Charles O'Conor, Samuel J. Tilden and Wheeler H. Peckham, who now appear as respondents, the defendants having appealed from Judge Hogeboom's decision against the demurrer. The demurrer was that the State has no right to bring the suit. Messrs. Wm. A. Beach and Samuel J. Courtney also appeared for Connoly and Fields.

TWEED'S CASE.

The case of Tweed was called, and Judge Miller suggested that, as the case was to go to the Court of Appeals, the Court make a formal decision, which might be done by stipulation.

D. D. FIELD—Certainly.

Nominal sum to be fixed upon and not entered on the record of the Court, and the case be thus carried up.

Judge Miller said it seemed to him that that was the best way. It was an excellent suggestion. What do you say to that, on the other side?

Mr. O'CONOR—We will take the proposition into consideration as the argument progresses. We are dealing with numerous parties and numerous counsel, and now far we may agree with the stipulation is a doubtful. I am strongly impressed with the belief that it is our duty to push this case on without listening to any form of proposition from the other side. He had been coerced by his associate to accept terms in one of the cases, and when everything was done, the defendant flew from the arrangement. He felt that he and his associates had done well in not letting a single one of the defendants escape. He felt they had done the public a service in so acting; therefore, unless he could see a reason otherwise, he would advise his associates not to make any bargains or arrangements of this character. He said counsel might talk, and could talk for a long time on both sides, but he insisted that there was no doubt respecting the points raised. He was willing to stake his reputation on the declaration that when this case reaches the Court of Appeals not a single Judge will feel any doubt, and not one will sustain the points raised by the defendant.

The counsel was proceeding in this manner when Judge Miller reminded him that he was discussing the merits of the case. Immediately Mr. Beach and D. D. Field claimed the right of replying.

Mr. O'Conor insisted that he was only protesting against misquoting these points.

D. D. Field rose to reply and demanded the right to do so.

The Court consulted and said the counsel would be given abundance of time to answer in his argument. Some conversation ensued between the Court and counsel as to the time to be occupied in arguments. The Court thought the Tweed and Connolly cases ought to be argued together. It was finally agreed to give four hours to each side in arguing the Tweed and Connolly cases together, as they are similar, and in the meantime, the Court said they hoped the counsel would consider the preposition for a stipulation.

Edwin W. Stoughton then proceeded to open the argument for the appellants. After referring to the fact that an appeal in all cases is provided for, he said the decision here took the form of a judgment, and proceeded to show the importance of a judgment when rendered by this Court. He said this was a suit at law, seeking to recover a judgment for $6,000,000, obtained, as it is claimed, by fraud. The first question was, Can the people, on the complaint made, maintain an action? and he turned to an act to make provision for the government of the County of New-York to show that the officials named therein were empowered, as County officials, to issue bonds, raise money on them, and deposit the money with the County Treasurer. "Does this not show," he asked, "that there were County authorities to do all acts therein specified, and who owned the money deposited with that Treasurer? Has the Court any doubt on this point?" That was the question underlying this case, and proved to answer which disposes of it. In ordinary cases he would proceed no further; but this was a suit brought by the people of the State of New-York to recover this money. It was now averred that the people of the State owned this money; nowhere averred that they controlled it while in the hands of the County Treasurer. No Court has yet determined that the people of the State owned the money raised on bonds issued by the County, and for which the County pledges its faith. The counsel then proceeded to detail the proceedings of the Board of Audit. He also quoted the law authorizing the issue of the bonds, and then asked if this Court would allow a County to set up as a defense that it could not pay them because all the money raised upon them had been wrongfully used? The case does say that the county was not liable, but that the State was, and could pay when it pleased, because, forsooth, the Legislature of the State had authorized the County to issue the bonds! The County officers had disposed of this money and the County is still liable; but who owns this money—the County or the State? If in this case it belongs to the State, does not the same idea apply to all other counties of this State; and if so, where is the authority? He referred to the averment that the suits brought by the Supervisors are collusive, and brought on by to interfere with the suits subsequently brought by the State. It would make no difference how many such suits were brought, provided the State was entitled to bring suit. He called attention to the fact that in the complaint there was no averment against Tweed of fraud. There was an averment that after the money was deposited in the bank he participated in its division, but even in this there is no averment of fraud on his part.

CONNOLLY'S CASE.

Samuel J. Courtney then opened the argument in the case of Connolly. He commenced by referring to the declaration made by Mr. O'Conor that no Judge could or would sustain the point raised by the defense, that the City was not liable. Counsel maintained that Mr. O'Conor was entirely mistaken, and cited the opinion of Judge Learned, as also that of Judge Hogeboom, as showing that regarded the point of importance. As to the case of Mr. Connolly, the complaint had not been verified by even the father of all the complaints, Mr. Tilden. Counsel denied the right of the State to step in and bring suits such as these. No authority was given by the Corporation Counsel to bring these suits, but he found a correspondence by which it was proposed to institute such proceedings as would secure the return of this money to those to whom it belonged. Those proceedings have been instituted. The only charges against Connolly were that he had neglected his official duties, and the amounts are so large that there is suspicion of fraud. In answer to this, we say Connolly's duties were official, governed by statute, and we insist that the people of this State have no right to call him to account for neglect of official duties even were he guilty of it. The counsel then retracted the previous speaker's argument about whose the stolen money was. Suppose, he asked, the State recovers this money? What will it do with it? This was one of the questions which troubled Judge Hogeboom. He asked: What will eventually become of this money? Who will get it? Where will it go to? and, I ask, where would it go? Would it go into the State Treasury, to be used in improving its canals or other great public improvements? The counsel referred to the effort made to legitimize this action by introducing a bill in the last Legislature. So fearful, so convinced were they that they could not sustain themselves they were obliged to resort to the device of securing an ex post facto law to assist them. The bill failed, however; it never became a law. Counsel then referred to a law which appropriated $50,000 to pay these counsel. That law directed the County of New-York to pay these gentlemen. This was a recognition of the County for this purpose.

REPLY OF MR. O'CONOR.

Mr. Charles O'Conor followed, saying he agreed with the counsel on the other side, who proposed to have out of discussion here the matter concerning the Board of Supervisors as unimportant and irrelevant at this time. By so doing the Court would find themselves rid of much perplexity. He would, there fore, ignore all relative to that matter. He then read from the law authorizing the issue of bonds, explaining the provisions as he read. The Controller, who is not the County Treasurer, was to pay this money raised on the bonds to the holders of claims against the City and County. It was the Controller who was to pay out the money. The bonds were issued, the money was raised, and the Controller paid the claims. This was all regular under the law, except in the matter of paying fraudulent claims.

Here the hour for recess arrived, when the Court took a recess till 4 o'clock P. M.

MR. O'CONOR SPOILS COURTNEY'S POINT.

When Mr. Courtney alluded to the bill passed by the Legislature providing $50,000 for the fees of counsel in these cases, Mr. O'Conor stated that he did not receive any such money.

Mr. Courtney replied that he did not say he did, but the bill was passed making that appropriation, nevertheless.

Mr. O'Conor said that he did not receive a cent of the money, neither did Mr. Tilden. Their services had been given gratuitously.

On the reassembling of the Court at 4 P. M., Mr. O'Conor continued his argument. After explaining how these bonds were authorized, he asked who was to suffer from the misdoings in the matter. It was not nor would not be the bond-holder, because he had parted with his money in good faith, and the bonds were issued to him by the proper officers and under authority of law. He would be paid fully. Then who was it, he asked again, that was to suffer? It was the tax-payer, or he who would be the tax-payer, when and as the bonds became due. He contended that this money was never in the County Treasury, and if it ever had any lodgment there, it was, according to a proper construction of the law, improperly there. The bonds were to be issued, money raised upon them, and that money used to pay certain claims. The Controller was to pay these claims with this money. He was not to deposit it in the County Treasury, and therefore that Department never had any possession or control over it. He then returned to the question as to who was the injured party, and that was the tax-payers—persons perhaps now unborn. The corporate authorities, the Board of Supervisors, are not the ones who are to pay these bonds. The bonds are to be paid by taxation only. He asked: "Then is anybody, any entity, to be injured? any one, in short, but the tax-payer? And then," he said, "no individual tax-payer can bring a suit to recover this money. No one can bring this suit but the people of the State, represented in their sovereign corporate capacity."

Mr. Stoughton asked who it was that owned this money.

Mr. O'Conor said if such a question was relevant, he had but one answer to make, and that was that the State of New-York owned it. The State authorized the issue of the bonds which took the money from the people of the State.

Counsel argued at considerable length the point as to whose the money belonged. He put the case thus: Agents of the State were authorized to raise, say a million of dollars. They raised instead six millions. The State says you have taken money from the people, who cannot get it back again, but I will step in and make you give it to me. It is my money, which you raised through my authority. Local governing corporations, he said, may, like all other corporate bodies, defend actions brought against them, and prosecute actions in defense of their corporate or official property or rights. But they do not, in any general or legal sense, represent the local population or the local tax-payers, past, present or to come. Nor is it their duty, nor have they any authority to institute suits or proceedings to preserve or vindicate any public or private right of such persons to sustain this claim. He quoted various authorities, and he, therefore, asked, if the State has not the right to bring this suit, who has? He held the County was liable only as the servants of the State. Every dollar was to come out of the citizens of the State.

Counsel then discussed the organization, powers and duties of the Board of Supervisors, holding that their powers and duties were of the most limited character. He pursued this point at much length.

Here Mr. O'Conor was interrupted by a conversation between counsel and the Court as to the time to be taken on each side, when Mr. Beach said that he hoped the arguments would be concluded to-morrow, as he had written to the President of the Court of Impeachment that he was engaged here, and asking a postponement of the Barnard trial till Thursday. It was agreed that the argument would be so made as to be concluded to-morrow, and the Court thereupon adjourned to meet at 9 o'clock A. M. to-morrow.

THE BRYAN CONTRACT.

Continuation of the Argument in this Case Before the Commissioner—Decision Reserved.

The Commissioners of Contracts, Ex-Judge Sutherland, Hooper C. Van Vorst and D. R. Jaques, resumed their inquiry yesterday in the Chamber of the Board of Aldermen into the awards made by the Mayor and Commonalty of the City by virtue of chapter 580 of the laws of 1870. Mayor Hall was in attendance. The claim of John Bryan for award of contract for paving with Stowe foundation pavement, White, Fifteenth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Twentieth, Thirtieth and Fortieth streets, bids for which were opened Nov. 23, 1870 was again taken up. Mr. Shepherd, counsel for the property-owners, resumed his argument in opposition to the award. He read the act upon which the claim was based, which act provides for advertising in all the Corporation newspapers. The act rendered it necessary that the advertising of bids should be published ten days before the going out of the bid, but in this particular it was admitted that the law was not complied with, as the ordinance was only published once.

Mr. Strahan, on the part of the Controller, said that there was no legal advertisement of the ordinance, and if it was not properly advertised, under the Douglas case there was no ordinance at all.

Judge Sutherland considered that this question of advertising had nothing to do with the case. The question under deliberation was whether there was a fraud. The City, no more than a private individual, could withdraw from a claim, and the spirit of the law was that the City was responsible for the obligations assumed by the officers.

Mr. Strahan maintained that the mere fact of bringing a paper by Mr. Bryan, having paid $60,000 to see it through, and having it approved of by Mr. Wm. M. Tweed, did not constitute an award. He denied that there was any award, and that these proceedings were of any avail. [The advertisement referred to was put in evidence.]

Mr. Shepherd continued to say that it was a fraud on the part of the Common Council to omit the publication of these ordinances, so that the matter should not go before the public; for a knowledge of the fact would raise up such an opposition to it as would crush it. This was but a portion of the Guy Fawkes policy of the Common Council, who bartered away the interests of the people in a sub-cellar. He referred to the forgery of the ordinance of March 6, 1870, as testified to by Mayor Hall and claimed, also, that a fraud had been committed by the contractor in procuring bankrupts as his sureties for the contract. The charge of bribery, which had been clearly shown, vitiated the contract. It was manifest on the evidence that a large sum of money—some $60,000—had been given to procure the contract, and with these circumstances before the Commission, he insisted that it should not be considered.

Mr. Calvin, on the part of Mr. Bryan, said that a complete misrepresentation of facts in regard to the evidence of Major Hall on the subject of the alleged forgery was made by the other side. He characterized the evidence of Mr. Jennie as perjury, but at this period Mr. Jennie warmly jumped to his feet and stated that a local editor had ample evidence to corroborate him. Counsel retracted his observations, and attributed Mr. Jennie's mistakes to the improper influences which surrounded him. He reviewed the evidence in the case as published in yesterday's TIMES, and contended that the claim should be awarded and allowed by the Commission.

This closed the hearing in this case, and decision was reserved.

CUBA.

Valmaseda Sailed for Spain—A Powder Magazine Exploded by a Stroke of Lightning—The Diario on the Seizure of the Pioneer.

HAVANA, July 14, via KEY WEST, July 16.—Count Valmaseda embarked for Spain today. An immense concourse of citizens assembled at the Captain-General's Palace and upon the quays to bid him farewell. He is accompanied by Col. Ortuz and his personal staff.

The newspaper La España has suspended publication.

Don Suarez Vigil has been appointed Political Secretary of the Island of Cuba.

The Spanish iron-clad Numancia will shortly sail for New-York en route to Spain.

An expedition which left here some time ago to search for hidden treasure near the Laguna de Cortes, in the Vuelta Abajo District, has returned unsuccessful.

Gen. Lofio, the commander of Fort Cabana and Morro Castle, is shortly to return to Spain.

Fort Monarca, at Nuevitas, was struck by lightning on the night of the 10th inst. The powder magazine exploded instantaneously with the stroke, and seven artillerists of the garrison were killed. One of the rifled cannons was carried a distance of fifty yards from its embrasure. Fort Monarca was built in 1869, by the City of Nuevitas, and was presented to the Government in 1870.

The Cuban civil Government has granted to coolies the right to return to China, after complying with certain prescribed conditions.

The Cable Company has chartered the steamer Quintin to carry telegrams between Havana and Key West until the cable can be repaired.

The Diario, commenting upon the seizure of the steamer Pioneer, says that vessel is a pirate, not a privateer, and that the commander of the Moccasin decided her status when he captured her, and carried her into Newport. Had she been a privateer he would not have taken her, because a privateer is a vessel of war, belonging to a nation recognized as a belligerent.

POUGHKEEPSIE.

Suicide—A Yacht Capsized—A Visiting Boat Club.

From Our Own Correspondent.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Tuesday, July 16.

Last Saturday evening a man named Henry Briggs, of this county, proceeded to the river, and taking off his hat laid it on the stringpiece of the dock and jumped into the water, with the intention of committing suicide. The splashing noise attracted the attention of bystanders, and he was rescued. He had left a paper in his hat, which fully explained his identity. Yesterday his hat was found on a dock-log at the north end of the city, and this morning his body was found in the Hudson, two miles south of this city. An Ulster County Coroner held an inquest, the jury returning a verdict in accordance with the facts. Briggs leaves a married sister in the town of La Grange.

During a squall yesterday afternoon the yacht Lu Lu, of Low Point, was capsized in Newburg Bay. All hands were saved, and the vessel was afterward towed to shore, where she was righted. Heavy rain storms have prevailed at intervals at all points on the Hudson today. Although the heat has been intense, it is a remarkable fact that it was unaccompanied by either lightning or thunder and with but very little wind.

The Laureate Boat Club, of Troy, numbering eighty-five members, will visit Poughkeepsie to-morrow on the special steamer Metamora, and be received by the Shatemuc Club, of this city. Jas. O'Neil, the oarsman, will accompany the excursionists.
